GRAND LABOR PARADE IMPOSING PARADE 100,000 ARE DROWNED

HEAD OF PARADE ENTERING MERRIMACK SQUARE

With 2500 Men In Line Followed by Sports on So. Common

One of the finest Labor day demonstrations ever held in this city was that of yesterday. There was something going on all of the time. In the morning there was a grand parade and in the afternoon there were sports on the south common which were witnessed by thousands of people while in the evening other thousands flocked to enjoy the open air meeting.

The feature of the day, however, was the parade in the morning and the number of men in line, the fine appearance of the members of the different unions, the manner in which the men went over the route and the well kept ranks reflect much credit upon the organizations. That, turned out, the committee in charge of the parade and organized labor itself.

The weather was ideal during the entire day, and thousands of people lined the sidewalks of the different streets through which the parade passed and enthusiasm ran high as the parade passed along the route. Of course nearly every person who witnessed the parade had particular friends in the different unions and naturally they applauded when those unions passed, but every now and then when a neatly attired organization passed there was an outburst of applause, cheers and handclapping.

There were about 2500 men in line and their neat appearance was generally applauded. There was but one float in the parade, that of the Wool

Sorters' union, but there were numerous floats carried by the different unions.

The marshals of the different divisions were at their posts as early as 8 o'clock in the morning and as soon as the organizations marched to the starting point of the parade they were assigned to their positions. Promptly at 9:30 o'clock everything was in readiness for the start of the parade and after the division marshals reported the signal for the start was given.

Chief Marshal Charles E. Anderson mounted on a spirited black horse, attracted considerable attention and received much applause all along the line of march. He followed the platoon of police which was headed by Lieut. Martin Connors, and following the chief marshal were the following aides: John Buey, building laborers; Chas. Davis, teamsters; 72; Edward O'Brien, street railway men 551; William H. Lester, carpenters 43; Philip Roy, carpenters 1610; William R. Mulcahey, theatrical stage employees; Sandy Dunn, brewery teamsters; Joseph Kennedy, brewery bottlers; Stanislaw Wozniak, cotton weavers; John W. Downing, international brotherhood of stationary firemen, local 14; James E. Anderson, barbers; Carl Heidenreich, brewery workers; Thomas McKenna, cigar makers; James A. Burns, clerks; Joseph E. Fiske, representing citizens; Fred Latendresse, leather workers; Michael Larkin, international molders 55; Hugh Maguire, bartenders; William D. Raygan, printing pressmen; Frank Kleron, city teamsters; Harvey E. Greene, recreation of churches; Fred A. Hennessy, street

One of the largest and most successful celebrations organized by the French speaking people of this city was held yesterday, the event being the dedication of the grotto erected in honor of Our Lady of Lourdes on the grounds of the French American orphanage in Pawtucket street. The phantasm started with a parade in which several thousand men and children were in line, and was followed by religious exercises at the altar in the grotto, the latter being witnessed by fully 10,000 people, while at night a torch light procession was held around the grounds.

Rev. Henri Watelle, O. M. I. conceived the idea of erecting a grotto to Our Lady of Lourdes, and he immediately asked the members of the religious and benevolent societies of The parish to cooperate with him in the movement. This they gladly agreed to do and a few months later the cement monument was under construction. A committee of which Xavier Delisle, president of the C. M. A. C. and Joseph P. Marchand of Union St. Joseph, were chairman and secretary respectively, was formed among the societies and a celebration on a large scale was at once planned. Several out-of-town invitations were sent, but owing to the Labor day celebrations in other cities, very few organizations outside of Lowell responded.

However, as was above stated, the assembly was as successful as could be expected and the entire affair was run off as smoothly as could be desired. The committee in charge deserves congratulations for its good work. Long before the time set for the parade the sidewalks along the route were crowded with people, and the scene was a pretty one, especially about St. Jean Baptiste church and the orphanage, where the decorations were splendid. The church and the rectory were a mass of flags and flowers, and large streamers hung from corner to corner of the buildings, while the orphanage with its streamers of white and yellow and its hundred little flags was also a very pretty sight.

At 1:30 o'clock the different divisions took their respective places along Pawtucket street, where Garda Frontenac was busily engaged in escorting the

Cambridge St. Bridge an Expensive Job

The building of the Cambridge street bridge seems to be charged with a lot of unlooked for expense because of a foundation that the builders say is as vagrant as the slave law. A hard stratum is struck at 12 feet and at 20 feet a quicksand is encountered and the bottom has not yet been probed. Supt. Putnam says that it will be necessary to use 35 foot piles and that it will be necessary to use a goodly number of them.

Smooth Paving Work

The superintendent of streets allows that the smooth paving work in Merrimack street will be done on Thursday and that the Garham street job will be done within 10 days. The streets that the committee on streets have voted to all include Riverside and Moody streets and Colonial avenue.

Committee on Sewers

The committee on sewers will meet at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon and will view the Oakland filter bed, so called, and also the main sewer and the proposed arrangement for the pumping of the sewage over the hill to the Andover street sewer. The committee will meet at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

FUNERALS

McELROY.—The funeral of Thomas McElroy took place yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the chapel of Undertakers J. P. O'Donnell & Sons and was largely attended, including a number from out of town, among the latter being Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Flanagan of Watertown, Mrs. Mary Kerwin of Watertown and Mrs. Regan of Plymouth, Mass. The bearers were Henry Pendergast, Joseph Kerwin, John Kerwin and Joseph Flanagan. At the grave the Rev. Joseph Curran of St. Patrick's church read the committal prayers and the burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery.

LAPORTE.—The funeral of the late Henri Laporte, beloved child of Mr. and Mrs. Ladger Laporte, took place Sunday afternoon. The long cortege left the house, 63 Tucker street at 2:45 o'clock and proceeded to St. Jean Baptiste church where at 3 o'clock services were held. Rev. Fr. Watelle, O. M. I., officiating. The bearers were Wilfrid Flavelle and Domina Chartrean, Harry Trudel, Ernest Demonteuil and Ed. Major. The burial was in the family lot in St. Joseph's cemetery in charge of Undertaker Albert. Among the floral tributes were: Large spray of roses, Dr. and Mrs. McGinnis; spray of pinks, Mr. and Mrs. Tessler; spray of pinks, Mrs. H. Ducharme and Mrs. A. Lapointe.

TRAINOR.—The funeral of the late Margaret Trainor took place this morning from the home of her parents, 16 Kinsman street, at 9:30 o'clock and was largely attended by sorrowing relatives and friends. The cortege after leaving the home of the sorrow stricken parents wended its way to the Sacred Heart church in Moore street, where at 10 o'clock a high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Bernard Fletcher, O. M. I. The choir under the direction of Mr. John J. Kelly, who also presided at the organ, sang the Gregorian mass. There was a profusion of floral tributes, prominent among them being the following: Broken circle, family; spray of roses, Mr. and Mrs. James Trainor; spray of roses, Mr. and Mrs. Merrill; spray of 27 roses, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn; mounted "Our Cousin," Margaret Trainor and family; pillow "Our Cousin," Mr. and Mrs. Rob. Lindsay; wreath, "Our Cousin," Haverhill; spray of roses, Mary Moran; Haverhill; spray of asters, "Chum," Christina and Molly Dillon; spray, Mrs. Cummings and family; spray of asters, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Dewire; spray of 27 roses, Bernice Sweet; spiritual bouquet, Miss Higgins.

The bearers were Thomas Trainor, Robert Lindsay, Frank Devine, John Kelly, Melvin King, and Walter Powers. Burial took place in St. Patrick's cemetery. The committal prayers at the grave were read by Rev. Bernard Fletcher, O. M. I. Undertaker John J. O'Donnell had charge of the funeral.

FATALLY BURNED

Baby Played With Matches and Is Dead

Stanley Berkosky, a 22 months old Polish child, came across some matches at the home of his parents, 14 Howe street, yesterday afternoon, and in playing with them set fire to his clothes and was terribly burned before assistance arrived. The little one was removed to St. John's hospital where he died. Medical Examiner Melis viewed the remains this morning and pronounced death due to accidental burning.

STREET HEARING

Held by County Commissioners Today

The county commissioners met at the court house this morning and heard Chairman Eben T. Adams of the Chelmsford board of selectmen and Capt. J. Adams Bartlett on petitions relative to the widening of Westford and Acton streets in Chelmsford. The former hearing was continued until the regular meeting on the third Monday in September while the latter was put over until October 5th at Lowell.

The commissioners had nothing to say relative to the appointment of a superintendent of the Training school, and in all probability will take no action on the matter until after election. They have kept in close touch with the institution since the death of Supt. Warren and evidently are satisfied with conditions under Acting Supt. Mason.

THE LEATHER WORKERS COUNTERMARCHING ON BRIDGE STREET TOWARDS MERRIMACK SQUARE railway men 250; Frank Warnock, plasterers; Joseph Preston, painters; Fred Robey, electrical workers; William McElroy, steam engineers; Molsa Daigle, teamsters.

The marshals of each division and their aides were mounted on horses, after which came the different organizations. The roster of the divisions was as follows:

First division—Allied Printing, Trades Society, Barbers, Cigar-makers, City Teamsters, Cotton Weavers, International Brotherhood of Stationary Firemen, Stationary Engineers, Local 14, Plasterers, Street Railway Men 250, Street Railway Men 551, Tailors.

Second division—Building Laborers,

Molders, Painters, Carpenters 43 and 1610, Electrical Workers.

Third division—Leather Workers, Loomfixers, Brewery Workers, Teamsters 72, Bartenders.

The first division formed on Middle street, right resting on Central street; the second division on Market street, right resting on Central street; and the third division on Jackson street right resting on Central street. Promptly at 9:30 o'clock the parade started to move over the following route:

Middle street to Central, to Middlesex, to Thorndike, to Fletcher, to Adams, to Cabot, to Merrimack (to be reviewed at city hall by members of city government), to Bridge, to Sixth, countermarch to Prescott to Central, to Charles, to Summer, to South Common where it was reviewed by the chief marshal and staff and dismissed.

Three Bands in Line

There were but three bands in line but they furnished enough music to keep the paraders in step and one of the noticeable things about the bands was that they kept playing practically all the time from the start to the finish of the parade. The Independent Fife and Drum Corps, attired in khaki uniforms, attracted considerable attention all over the route of the parade for they played national and popular airs and medleys.

Several of the unions furnished harp-tunes for the members who were unable to walk. Mayor Meehan, the city council committee on Labor day, and invited guests, also occupied carriages.

At the conclusion of the parade the committee in charge of the prizes met and the $20 in gold for the best appearing union in line was awarded to the Bartenders, the 2nd prize of $10 going to the coal teamsters. The Leather Workers' union had the largest number in line, 252, and they were awarded the first prize of $10. The Carpenters' union was second and captured the second prize of $5. The coal teamsters and bartenders had $2 each, the building laborers $1.

A VERY SAD CASE

Two Little Children Died of Poisoning

Agnes Josephine Casey, aged three years and six months, and her sister, Margaret, aged eight years and eight months, children of Henry and Elizabeth Casey of 14 1/2 street, died within a few hours of each other Saturday night at the home of their parents, death being due to accidental poisoning.

The manner in which they were effected is not known. The first symptoms appeared Tuesday when both children were taken suddenly ill and displayed all symptoms of ptomaine poisoning. A physician was summoned but after making an examination found that there was no chance for the little ones to live.

Medical Examiner J. V. Meigs was called and declared that death was due to accidental poisoning but could not determine exactly the cause.

The funeral of the two children took place from the home of their parents at two o'clock this afternoon and the interment was in the family lot in the Catholic cemetery.

GOTCH HOLDS TITLE

World Champion Was Too Much for the "Russian Lion"

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—The geographical center of the wrestling world was more than ever fortified at Humboldt, Ia., the home of Frank Gotch, yesterday. Moreover, referee Ed Smith, who proclaimed the world's champion victor over George Hackenschmidt, declared that for the next ten years there would be no shift of the wrestling capital, unless Gotch should choose to change his place of residence.

The Russian's showing was pitiful. The crowd decreed that he had quit, but the defeated challenger, through copious tears, averred that he entered the arena with a wrenched knee on which Gotch worked and speedily reduced him to a state of comparative helplessness.

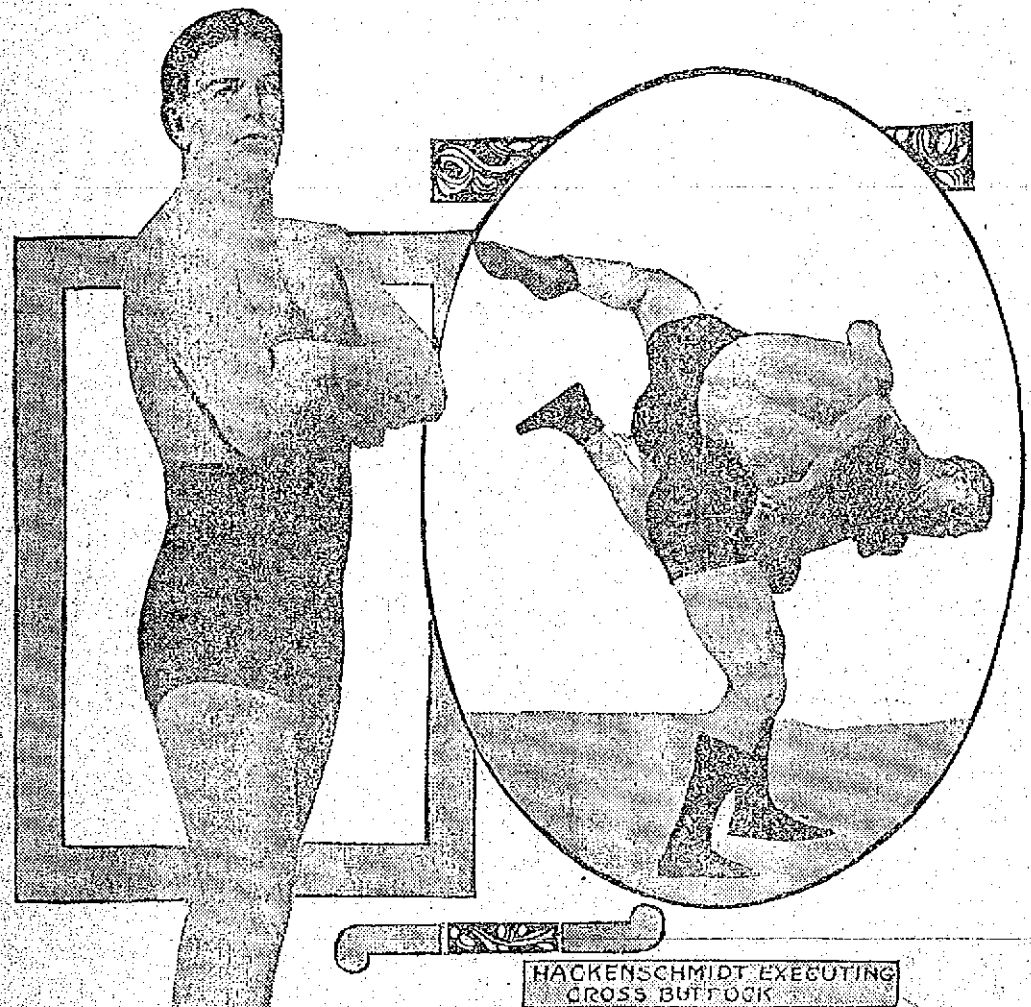

The foreigner's nerves were on edge. He spent a sleepless night and was pale when he crawled through the ropes. Dr. J. J. Davis, who examined both wrestlers before they went to the mat, declared that, though there might be something wrong with Hackenschmidt's knee it was not evident during the examination.

While it took Gotch 14m 18½s to gain the first fall, the second fall required only 5m 32s, which, Hackenschmidt's friends assert, proved that his knee was in bad condition.

Referee Smith is authority for the statement that when Gotch secured the fatal toe-lock which won him the match, Hackenschmidt cried out, "Don't hurt my leg," and a second later, "Don't break my leg," and fell with his shoulders to the mat, frothing at the mouth.

Famous Too-Hold Used
The first fall, resulted from a reverse body hold, after the men had struggled 14:18½. That terrible toe hold for which Gotch is famous was responsible for the second fall. He clamped it upon the left foot of Hackenschmidt after the second fall had gone 3:32 1-5.

ropes. Dr. J. J. Davis, who examined both wrestlers before they went to the mat, declared that, though there might be something wrong with Hackenschmidt's knee it was not evident during the examination.

MARTIN SHERIDAN NOW HARD IN TRAINING FOR COMING CHAMPIONSHIPS

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—For the first time in more than a year Martin Sheridan, who is rated as the greatest athlete in the world, is now down to real hard training for the coming meets. Sheridan has taken up his abode at Celtic park and is working faithfully to get rid of some of the extra weight that he has accumulated during the past twelve months. Sheridan is doing most of his work on the track and still has the old jump at the start that used to bring him victory

Scarcely had he obtained the grip when Hackenschmidt acknowledged defeat. Hackenschmidt's own statement, that it was the easiest world's championship ever won, tells the story of the bout almost as well as it could be told. Gotch never was in serious difficulty at any time during the match. Neither was he forced to extend himself to win. The Iowa secured in all, perhaps, half a dozen dangerous holds on his antagonist.

Hackenschmidt obtained a bodyhold on Gotch that brought him to the mat. But the champion was on the mat for only a few seconds. Then he was only down as far as his knees. Almost before the "lion" realized that his opponent was in a dangerous predicament Gotch had wriggled out of the hold and was bounding across the ring to safety.

For his defeat Hackenschmidt offers but one excuse—that his left knee, which was injured in training two weeks ago, weakened under the pressure of the iron hands of Gotch, and it was useless for him to continue at the risk of being permanently injured. But regardless of whether there be any merit to Hackenschmidt's claim that his knee was in bad shape, it cannot be denied that the challenger was in no state mentally to enter into a grueling contest. Hackenschmidt was unnerved before he entered the arena. Whether it was from worry over his injured knee, or his fretting over the match generally, cannot be said.

Parallel to Jeffries Case
Like Jeffries, however, the Russian Lion spent a sleepless night before the battle, although his trainers tried every means to put him at ease. They had him room with John Koch, a German, and one of Koch's chief duties was to sing songs of the fatherland to the Russian and try to soothe him. But Hackenschmidt would not be calmed. After trying vainly for several hours to go to sleep, he arose and pleaded with his trainers to give him drugs that would make him rest. They refused to do this, and Hackenschmidt retired to fret the night away.

In the minds of the vast crowd that saw the match there was no doubt as to which was the better wrestler. Gotch outpointed, outgeneralized and outgained his opponent. The Iowa appeared faster than he ever had been before. His condition was perfect. He entered the ring filled with confidence, and at every stage of the bout he smiled as though he never had the slightest doubt as to the ultimate outcome.

On the other hand, Hackenschmidt seemed ill at ease. During the first fall he went about his work with his face set and anything but the glint of confidence in his eye. And after Gotch had gained the first fall, the courage of the Russian appeared to have seceded out of him. With shoulders stooped and eyes downcast, he sat in his corner awaiting the starting signal. In a box in the center of the grand stand sat Gotch's mother and his young bride. Frequently while in the thick of the fray Gotch found time to look toward the two women and smile. Hackenschmidt was heartbroken over the result of the bout. In his dressing room for half an hour he sat in his wrestling garb crying and refusing the proffered attentions and cheering words of his trainers. Gotch only smiled after the match was over. He said the result was exactly as he thought it would be.

The Wrestling
The story of the actual wrestling that was done is soon told. Time was called at 2:15 o'clock. The contestants immediately locked heads and for five minutes tugged at each others' neck, wrists and arms. After making several fake passes at Hackenschmidt's knees, Gotch finally obtained a knee hold at the end of eight and a half minutes. Once the Iowa's massive hands were fastened on Hackenschmidt's left leg, the Russian went down. He struggled out of that and a subsequent hold of the same kind and then became the aggressor. At 19 minutes Hackenschmidt secured a body hold and put Gotch to the mat, but he was down only an instant. After 14 minutes of wrestling Gotch started Hackenschmidt downward with a kneehold, faked a crotch and then quickly worked the Russian into a half-nelson. They struck the mat together, head to head. Then Gotch pivoted on his opponent's stomach, clamped on a reverse body hold, and the first fall was over. The first five minutes of the second fall was a repetition of that period in the first. But suddenly Gotch reached down with his right hand, grasped Hackenschmidt's left ankle and unbalanced the lion. While Hackenschmidt was trying to regain his equilibrium, Gotch struck the lion's injured leg with his right knee and the Russian crumpled into a heap upon the canvas. Instantly Gotch was in him, his powerful right hand firmly locked upon the under man's left toe. Hack screamed a couple of times, rolled over on his shoulders and gave up.

MUSICIAN DUPONT AGAIN THE WINNER OF THE PARKER CUP

Musician Dupont of the rifle team of Company C of the Sixth regiment distinguished himself Saturday when he again won the Parker cup with a score of 65. The shoot was held at the Dracut rifle range, and teams composed of members of Companies C and K competed. The Company K team won by the narrow margin of five points. Company K team did excellent work at the 200 yards range but at the 500 and 600 yards ranges they fell by the wayside.

The scores were as follows:

ANNUAL OUTING OF SPANISH WAR VETERANS AT MARTIN LUTHERS

Over 200 members of the Spanish War Veterans' association and ladies enjoyed an outing at the Martin Luther camp in Tyngsboro, yesterday, leaving Lowell at 8:30 on the Governor Allen, returning at 8 o'clock. A sumptuous repast was served and the day was taken up with baseball, races, athletic stunts and a tug of war for ladies.

RHEUMATISM IS CURABLE

Nature Has Provided a Way of Driving the Poison from the Blood Which Is the Only Cure.

In attacks of acute rheumatism there is a rapid thinning of the blood, the number of red corpuscles are reduced. These red corpuscles carry oxygen which is the weapon with which nature fights poisons in the blood.

Without proper treatment the rheumatic poisons in the blood increase and the body's means of defence is weakened. A remedy that will increase the number of red corpuscles under these conditions will cure rheumatism.

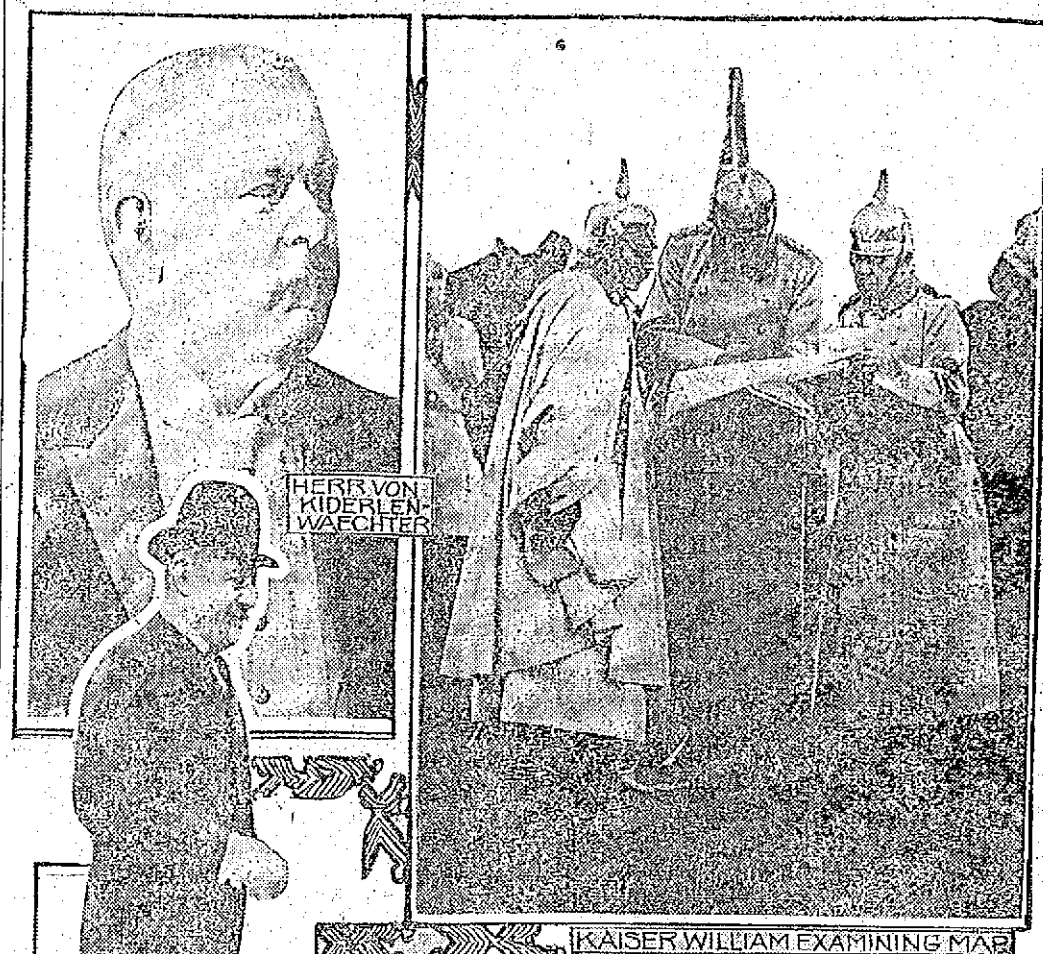

The direct action of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People is to increase the red corpuscles in the blood, making it rich and red. Any doctor can prove this. It is merely a matter of microscopic count. And any sufferer can tell that as the blood becomes richer the rheumatic pains disappear. Mr. Richard Kelly, a night watchman, of No. 124 Auburn Place, Rockford, Ill., says:

"I suffered from rheumatism for a number of years and was so bad off at times that I had to take to bed. The trouble followed an attack of typhoid fever, when I was a young man, which left me in bad shape. The rheumatism settled in my right shoulder and arm. I also had a lame back. I suffered a great deal and often when ploughing in the field would have to stop and lie down as the pains were so intense and came on so suddenly. I also had a very bad cough for years and my friends said it was consumption."

"I took the doctor's medicine for a while, but as it wasn't helping me I gave it up. I read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and gave them a trial. After taking a few boxes I could see they were helping me and I took them until cured. I had not been much of a believer in doctors and medicines but Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People certainly cured me of both the rheumatism and the cough."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are on sale at all druggists, or they will be sent to any address by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y. A valuable booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," will be sent free upon request.

RUMORS OF IMPENDING WAR BETWEEN FRANCE AND GERMANY INTENSIFIED

BERLIN, Sept. 5.—Now that M. Jules Cambon, the French ambassador here, and Herr von Kiderlen-Waechter, the German foreign minister, have resumed their "conversations" regarding the Moroccan dispute rumors of another Franco-Prussian war have intensified the excitement not only in the French and German capitals, but throughout Europe. The course the negotiations will pursue cannot be forecast with accuracy, but it is believed that if France is disposed to accept Germany's minimum demand of certain portions of the Kongo as compensation—and there is some reason to believe she is—the other questions affecting Morocco may be arranged satisfactorily. Germany is anxious to conclude the negotiations before Oct. 16, the date fixed for the meeting of the reichstag.

UNION PICNIC HELD BY MEMBERS OF THE UNITED WORKMEN

The members of Lowell lodge, No. 22, of this city, and Pacific lodge, No. 6, of Lawrence, Ancient Order of United Workmen, held a union picnic at Belle Grove Saturday afternoon. There were about 200 persons present and the afternoon was spent in an enjoyable manner. The majority of the members were accompanied by their families.

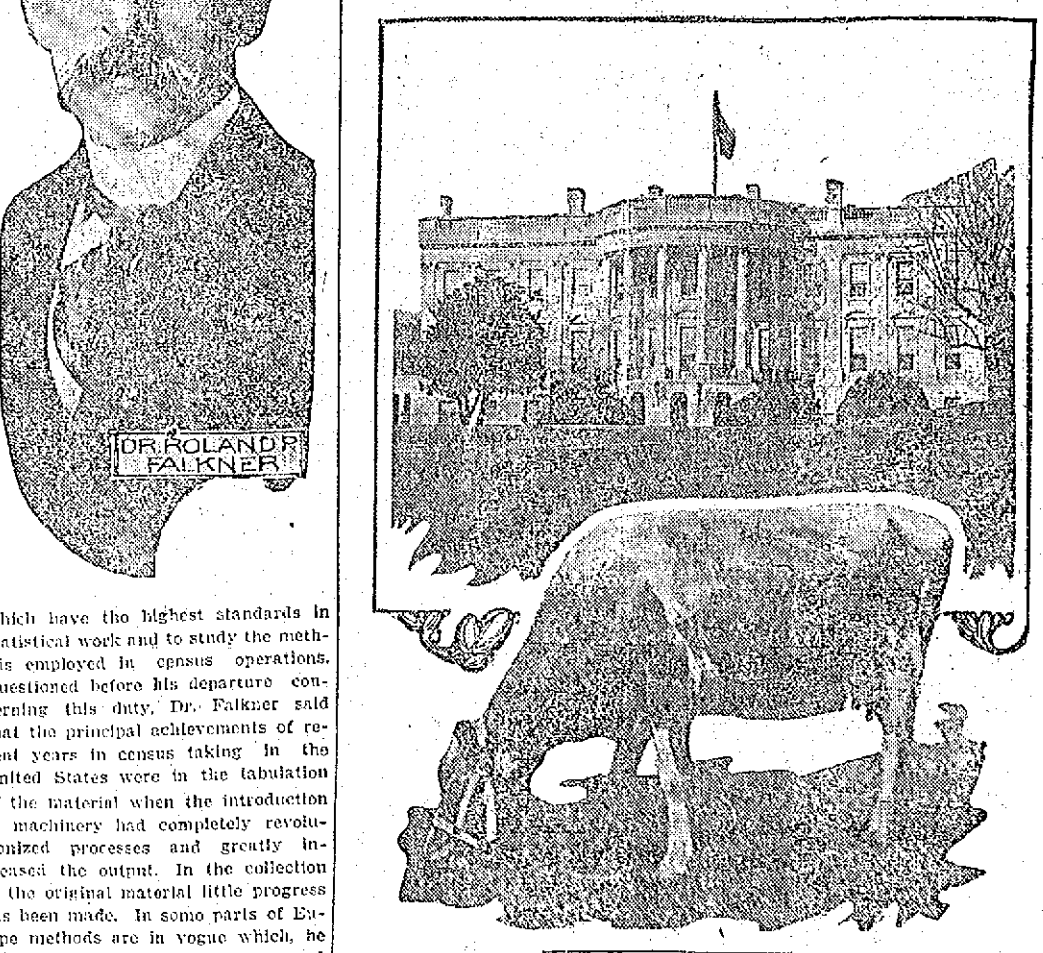

ITALIAN CATHOLICS HAD SERVICES AT ST. PETER'S YESTERDAY

Solemn high mass was sung at St. Peter's church at 10 o'clock yesterday morning for the Italian Catholics of Lowell of whom there are over 100 in this city. The celebrant was the Rev. Fr. Francis of the Franciscan order of Boston assisted by the Rev. John F. Burns, St. Peter's church, deacon and the Rev. John R. O'Brien of St. Peter's sub-deacon. The Rev. Daniel J. Kahaner also of St. Peter's church was master of ceremonies. After the mass Fr. Francis preached an eloquent sermon in Italian, and a great many received communion. The Italians of the Catholic faith are strong in their determination to build a church and steps were taken yesterday along that line, but nothing definite was settled.

When the Rev. Fr. Lewis, O. M. I., was stationed at St. Jean Baptiste church, the Italians had services at that church. The Rev. Fr. Lewis preaching to them in their own language.

The regular track events were then run off. Following is the result of the contests:

100-yards dash, Hannigan and Flory.

The sworn daily average circulation of The Lowell Sun for the year 1910 was Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martin H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Pilote, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 2, 1911. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

The city of Lawrence has our sympathy in the abject position it occupies in the eyes of the commonwealth. When a city's credit is so low that the banks do not want to advance it a loan the situation is indeed serious.

Canada is now getting a large percentage of her immigrants from the United States. The immigration department at Ottawa gives out figures which would indicate something in the nature of an American invasion. The total immigration from this country for July was 11,012, but it is safe to say that a large proportion of these were tourists who went there for a vacation. The immigration for the first four months of the year was 54,814, which shows a strong tendency northward that cannot be explained on the vacation theory.

AN EXPENSIVE ACCIDENT

The Lehigh Valley Railroad company on whose line the recent wreck at Manchester, N. Y., occurred will have to pay out nearly $1,000,000 in damages to the injured and the relatives of those who were killed. That will doubtless be a lesson to other companies in the necessity of preventing accidents. If in addition to this the company should be prosecuted for criminal negligence the companies of the country would thereafter stand in utter awe of such accidents.

OPPOSITION TO TAFT

That President Taft is not without opposition in his own party is shown by the attitude of the insurgents. Medill McCormick, one of the owners of the Chicago Tribune, is an influential factor in the republican party. He is with the La Follette progressives and is sternly opposed to the renomination of Taft. Speaking on the subject he recently said:

"It is plain from the president's speech last Saturday that he has learned nothing from the election of last November. First, nominated by Roosevelt, then dominated by Aldrich, he now would be the censor of republicanism. He would proscribe every one who differs with him."

La Follette, McCormick and a great many other prominent leaders will not be proscribed. Taft will find himself dependent almost entirely upon the standpatters who will never be able to elect him.

OILING STREETS

On Wednesday evening a hearing will be held at city hall on the proposition to oil certain streets. It is time that the street department made an intelligent experiment in this matter of oiling streets. Many cities less important than Lowell have been oiling streets quite extensively. The only thing we have done in this line was the oiling of the boulevard for the auto races. The cities of Worcester and Springfield have found the oiling of streets so beneficial that they expend a considerable amount for that purpose every year. The city of Haverhill has also begun to oil some of its streets, and the experiment meets general approval as it not only lays the dust but preserves the surface from disintegration. There are certain kinds of oil better adapted for some streets than others and again there are certain streets on which any kind of oil would be wasted. The oiling of streets is a process in which expert skill is required just as in smooth paving, sewer building or anything else.

LABOR DAY OBSERVANCE

The Labor Day parade and the exercises that followed constituted a highly creditable demonstration of the power, the dignity and the rights of labor. It is true that the parade might have been larger, but as it was it was thoroughly representative of organized labor in the various crafts, particularly the building trades. The day was thoroughly enjoyed, and it is to be presumed that it will at least result in increased prestige and membership for the various unions represented. Labor Day should be used to promote the welfare of labor without any attempt to intensify a feeling of antagonism for the men or the companies who use their capital in a legitimate manner. The labor men who emphasize the necessity of cooperation between capital and labor are safer leaders than those who would set these inseparable industrial elements at each others' throats.

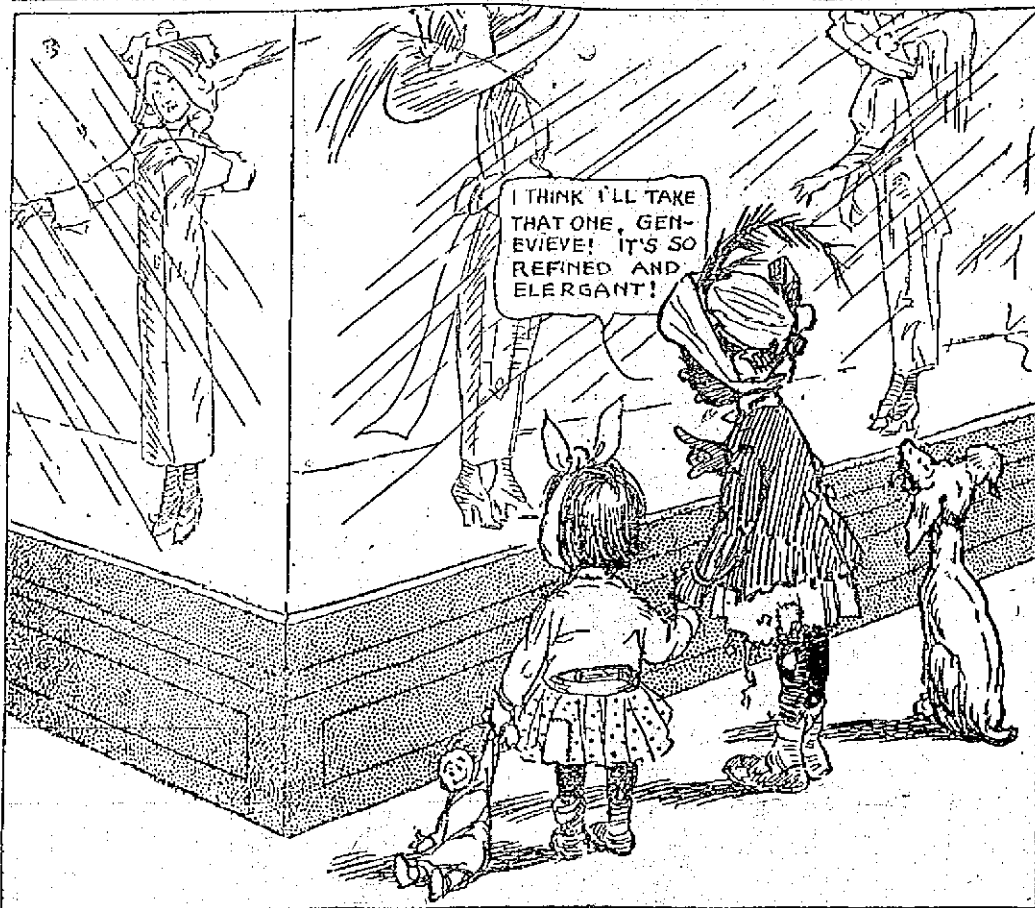

The southern members of the American Bar association are raising a howl because William H. Lewis, the negro assistant attorney general of the United States has been elected to membership. The southerners in opposing the admission of Mr. Lewis show their prejudice, and in so doing they are no credit to the Bar association or to their profession.

JUVENILE ROWDYISM

A day or two ago this newspaper printed an account of the assault in this city by two boys upon a younger boy, whom the assailants suspected of having told on them with respect to a petty theft. The victim is alleged to have been made a cripple for life. A few days previous to that, the story was published of a small boy who was carried by a gang of older boys into a swamp and pushed into the mud, where he would have died had not one of his playmates made a successful search for him. In this case, the motive appears to have been sheer feudishness, without even the excuse of revenge.—New Bedford Standard.

It is getting to be the custom in other cities than New Bedford, not excepting our own, for juvenile rowdies to beat and otherwise impose upon their juniors. They may not often resort to such extremes as in the two cases mentioned above, but they do deliberately waylay youngsters, sometimes taking whatever money they may have and at others beating them unmercifully. There are boys who constitute themselves neighborhood bullies and head gangs for the purpose of abusing their juniors and committing petty depredations, the destruction of property and various acts of vandalism. Their method of starting a quarrel with children younger than themselves is to call names or throw something at the children whom they want to abuse. Then on the slightest show of resistance they fall upon the little ones and abuse them in a manner that should receive the attention of the police, but the gangs have no trouble in avoiding the "cop" who, as a rule, pays little attention to their doings.

Those people in the flat above, I know, are queer.

They don't restrain at all their half-grown boys. They have a phonograph it's torture just to hear.

In short, they make a dreadful lot of noise. They keep the racket up quite frequently all one day.

Something that no flat dweller ought to do. I know all that, but tell me, now you have begun.

What do the people underneath you think of you?

The people in the flat above should be ashamed.

It's plain they're very inconsiderate. And there's no reason why you should be blamed.

For fussing, when they keep it up so late. Those are the things, you know, that fret you so.

The things the folks who live above you do. And, frankly, I should really like to know.

What do the people underneath you think of you?

It certainly seems unjust that authors should have to wait till publication.

FACTS About Motherhood

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred understands how to properly care for herself.

Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at the time of child-birth, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when the strain is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover.

Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The explainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health, resulting from an unprepared condition, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

It isn't as though the experience came upon them unawares. They have ample time in which to prepare, but they, for the most part, trust to chance and pay the penalty.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy, and strong.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that 98 per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce or his able staff, have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult us by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear or without fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Is in Training for the Swim to Boston Light

Henry D. Sullivan, the well known Centralville boy, who has made several swims from the Tyngsboro bridge to the Pawtucket falls and who recently established a record when he swam from the Centralville bridge to the falls in Lawrence, made his first long distance swim in salt water Sunday when he went from Revere beach to Nahant in two hours, six minutes and 37 seconds, thereby breaking the record held by Sam Richards who recently performed the feat in two hours and 15 minutes. He entered the water at Revere at 10:31 a. m. and reached Nahant at 12:37:58.

Five Boston swimmers accompanied Sullivan in the water, but they were unable to keep up the fast pace set by the Lowell boy and one by one they dropped out of the contest and were pulled into boats which were following the swimmers.

The water was rather cold and very choppy, but despite the fact that it was Sullivan's first long swim in the salt water he felt none the worse after the grueling test and when he arrived in Lowell in the evening he was in the pink of condition. The only complaint he had to make was that he had to go out of the regular course from the beach to Nahant owing to the number of boats that were in the water and he feels that but for this handicap he would have negotiated the distance in much less than two hours.

Sullivan was accompanied in a boat by his father, Thomas D. Sullivan; his brother, Harold B. Sullivan and John Conlon of this city, also George Lane of Dorchester, Capt. N. L. Smith of Wintthrop, Mr. Foss of Boston and George Jeffrey of Boston, the out of town men acting as timers for the swimmers.

Sunday's stunt was the first of a series of swims that Sullivan is to make in the salt water in order to get

THE hardest work in a man's life comes when he is struggling to get a foothold. Young men often over-estimate their strength in the intense absorption required by business affairs. District Attorney Higgins and Assistant Charles J. Wier presented the cases to the grand jury, assisted by State Officer Byrne.

There were 13 cases from Lowell and one from Groton. Among those on the Lowell list was that of Dr. Summer P. Smith, Jr. which State Officer Byrne and Sergeant Orwin of station 5, Boston were the only government witnesses.

The grand jury will report here on Saturday and then adjourn to Cambridge to conclude its report. The regular fall criminal session will open in this city on Monday next.

SOME GOOD ADVICE

Don't Have Anything to Do With Wet "Blankets"

If you cannot succeed yourself don't be a wet blanket on the efforts of others.

Any number of women go through life without accomplishing anything and yet with continually raised eyebrows at the efforts of others. One would think it was the height of the ridiculous to attempt anything in this world.

Such people never attempt anything hard; they are too afraid of failure, and, alas, that it should be so, this mental laziness brings its own punishment. They become soft and inefficient through continually avoiding effort.

What more natural, then, realizing their own limitations, than to seek by ridicule to prevent others from doing what they cannot themselves?

And so you hear them exclaim:

"Why do you attempt to cut out that pattern? Why not leave it to the dressmaker instead of trying yourself out?"

Or, "You cannot possibly put up that awning right; why don't you give it up?"

Then there is the continual reference to age by the "wet blanket." "For course you could do much and such a thing if you were younger," she will say. Or, "You could learn such and such a thing, but at your time of life it will take you too long," etc.

There is just one way to deal with a "wet blanket" besides the rather brutal one of telling her to hold her tongue, and that consists in leaving her alone and getting away from her as much as possible.

You may be ever so strong minded, but the "wet blanket" will get on your nerves, and in spite of yourself her eternal doubt will infect you, too, and you will watch yourself in a questioning mental attitude, where you are not sure of your own success, which means, as a rule, failure.

Go with people who fill you with confidence in your own self instead of timidity.

The world is full of women who are afraid to make any decisive record. Don't add yourself to the number of vacillating failures.

WAFERS

Half a pound of flour, a pint of new milk, a quarter of a pound of fine sugar and a quarter of a pound of butter. Beat the milk, put one half to the sugar and one half to the butter, strain off the sugar and mix all together very smoothly.

It is not generally known that if a teaspoonful of vinegar is added to a gill of milk when mixing cakes that the cakes will not only be much lighter, but only one egg is needed instead of two.

TOMATO AND APPLE SALAD

Remove the skins from some firm tomatoes, and cut them into slices; then cut an equal quantity of russet apples (free from peel) into slices, which should be of about the same size as the tomato slices. Arrange the fruit alternately on a suitable dish, dress them with mayonnaise sauce and garnish at the edge with shelled walnuts divided into small pieces and scatter a little finely chopped chervil and tarragon over all.

THE IDEALS OF LABOR

Address on South Common by
Rev. H. A. Atkinson

Labor Sunday was observed on the South common Sunday afternoon when the Federation of Churches and Trades and Labor council co-operated in services which were greatly enjoyed by hundreds of people. Rev. B. A. Willmott of the First Congregational church presided and the principal speaker was Rev. Henry A. Atkinson, the Congregational Brotherhood secretary of labor and social service. Mr. John J. Mahoney, president of the Trades and Labor council, also addressed the gathering.

The meeting was opened with the singing of "Nearer, My God, to Thee" with Mr. Thomas Wardell directing. The Scriptural lesson was read by Rev. N. T. Whitaker, D. D. and prayer was offered by Rev. S. W. Cummings.

Rev. Mr. Willmott then introduced President Mahoney of the Trades and Labor council, who said that the meeting was significant inasmuch as the labor men and the churches of the city had come together for the first time, to unite in what will hereafter be known as Labor Sunday. It indicates, he said, that labor is not opposed to the church, nor the church to labor; but that both have come to realize that neither can get along without the other.

A letter was read from Rev. J. E. Gregg, president of the Federation of Churches, expressing his regret at not being present and then Rev. Mr. Willmott spoke of his own former standing as a trades-union man, he having held a union card before he entered the ministry.

Rev. Mr. Atkinson's Address

Rev. Henry A. Atkinson was then introduced as the principal speaker. He said he knew a great deal about the church and something about trade unionism and continuing said: "The church has made some very serious mistakes. I know, too, that trades unionists have made some very serious mistakes. But I believe there is a great deal of good in the church, in spite of all its mistakes. In spite of the fact that it has emphasized things that ought not to have been emphasized, and has left out the emphasis where it ought to be put, I believe there is a great deal of good in trades unionism. I believe that if Jesus of Nazareth were living in our city today, and working at the carpenter's trade, he would be a member and

BIG AIRSHIP RACE

Ovington and Milling Winners of the Great Cross Country Event

BOSTON, Sept. 5.—Earle L. Ovington, the West Newton aviator, and Lieut. T. D. Milling carved their names deep into the honor shield of American aviation yesterday, when they piloted their aeroplanes over 160 miles of New England's rugged country while competing in the tri-state cross-country flight of the Harvard-Boston aero meet for prizes totaling $17,500.

To Arthur B. Stone, the navy New York flier, and to Harry N. Atwood, the local man, whose flight from St. Louis to New York last month was the talk of the country, is honor due for their attempts to fly about the circuit, although both were compelled to descend in Medford, within a half-mile of each other, on account of motor difficulties.

And America may well celebrate yesterday as the greatest day in American aviation, for two crack aviators of England, each noted for cross-country flying of the most difficult type, refused to go over the course, because of its dangers, and left the field to the Americans, whose pluck and daring carried them through to the finish, unscathed and honored above all of the daring aviators who have supported the prestige of this, the birthplace of heavier-than-air flight.

A conservative estimate places the number of spectators who witnessed the magnificent flights of the West Newton man who scoffs at superstition and boldly declares his confidence in the good luck of the supposedly fatal number 13, and the army officer who is demonstrating to his superiors at Washington the practicality of the aeroplane as an adjunct to the military, at 2,000,000.

Multitudes See Racers
All along the line New Englanders were gathered by thousands, the roofs of Boston were black, Nashua's fair grounds were crowded to capacity, Worcester could hardly afford a landing place for the aviators when they dashed over the New England fair, while Providence had so many Rhode Islanders gathered at Narragansett that there was only possible to clear a lane through which the fliers could fly from the field.

And at the Harvard Aviation Field in Squantum, at least 20,000 people, arose to their feet and screamed a greeting to the aviators as they winged their way across the skies, emporing and bursting with the crimson fire of the setting sun, and then crowded about the dashing birdmen as they were lifted from their aeroplanes and carried about the field by their fellow aviators and admirers.

For Ovington it was a victory for American nerve, a domination of cool-headedness and presence of mind over the hidden dangers of the treacherous air; for Milling it was also a triumph for American builders, and for the aeronautical corps of the army.

Enters Flight From Pacific
Ovington's victory was made possible, aside from his own confidence and capable control of his aeroplane, by the genius of the French builder who designed the Blériot monoplane in which he made the flight and by the engineering skill of the Frenchman who designed the 70-horsepower rotary motor that purred without a slip throughout the three-hour trip. So thorough was the test of both monoplane and motor that Ovington had hardly alighted from the shoulders of those who bore him about the field to triumph than he announced his entry in the flight from the Pacific coast to New York, declaring his readiness to start within a fortnight.

But Milling's victory was entirely American, the plane he drove being a Massachusetts product and the engine an Ohio invention and manufactured in that state.

The figures of the flights do not half express the wonderful performance of these American heroes of the air. To say that Ovington covered the course 3h. 6m. 22.1-ss, or at a rate of about 44 miles an hour, or that Milling's time with his extra miles covered when he lost his way was 5h. 25m. 37s. is to reduce to mathematical signs that are epochal in their influence on aviation.

Ovington $10,000; Milling $5000
Nor do the prizes compensate to any material degree the perils of the flight. The monoplane prizes were to be divided into three, a first of $7500, a second of $1500 and a third of $1000. To Ovington, the only man in that division to complete the course, Charles H. Taylor, the donor of this flight series of prizes, awarded the entire sum of $10,000 while to Milling was awarded the $5000 prize offered by a Providence newspaper and the committee in charge of the meet.

Arthur Stone, who started on the flight and descended only when a loose wiring threatened to set afire his gasoline supply, the committee gave a consolation prize of $1000 in recognition of his gameness and manifest sportsmanship.

Had Atwood completed the course he would have been showered with even greater praise than Ovington or Milling for in the seat beside him when he started was his father, Samuel S. Atwood, whose chagrin at the compulsory descent was far more pronounced than that of his son.

A hush came as Ovington donned his life-preserver heavy coat and padded helmet and climbed into the cockpit of his Blériot. At 11:10 he crossed the starting line and veering over the harbor, was off on the first leg of 40 miles, with Nashua as his destination.

He had already set his course for the New Hampshire city when Arthur Stone signalled his readiness and sent his Queen monoplane into the air for the preliminary circles. He too circled about the field then headed off to the north at an altitude of several hundred feet.

Crowd Awaits Bulletins

Atwood and his father were the first to get away in the plane division, crossing the line at 11:36, while seven minutes later Milling took the air. At 1:10 they had passed out of sight the crowd satiated back and awaited the telegraphic bulletins announcing the progress of the four birdmen.

All during the afternoon the aviators who had remained at the field performed thrilling evolutions, raced each other across the sky, banked, veered and speeded with greatest ease, yet the bursts of applause were for the announcements as they came over the special circuit.

The first important bulletin was "Stone has landed in Medford." While flying over the Charlestown navy yard the motor had begun to act badly and the aviator realized the danger of continuing his course. He promptly sought an alighting place and came to rest in the marshes near the old Cambridge Park race track.

GAME NOT FINISHED

Boston Cricketers Lead the Buntings

Boston and Bunting did not finish the full game yesterday, but the visitors won, as the game reverts to the first inning totals. Boston scored 50, to 38 for Bunting. Although the bowling of the Boston men was excellent in both innings, it was 5:45 p. m. when Bunting completed its second inning, and Boston did not bat again.

Dewhurst, of the Boston team, did the hat trick in the first inning, and almost repeated it in the second. In the first inning Mitchell of Boston took 1 for 16, Nevitt 5 for 13, and Dewhurst 4 for 2, and in the second Nevitt took 2 for 9 and Dewhurst 7 for 12. The score:

MOTOR BOAT RACES

Were Held on the Merrimack River

The motor boat races on the Merrimack river yesterday were all to the good. The weather was ideal; there was a good stiff breeze and for a new attraction it created great interest. Dr. Walter Knapp was the real promoter, and he worked hard to make the affair the success that it was. The races were run off at the Pawtucket boat house.

The course, as arranged by Lieut. officials, was to describe two laps around two buoys, one stationed at the Vesper Country club, while the other was anchored at the Pawtucket boat house, making a grand total of 14 miles. Two races were run off around the 14 mile course, one the handicap endurance race, while the other was a sprint speed race between Brooks and Flint. In the first event Littlefield was pronounced winner, while in the latter Brooks' boat proved superior, covering the 14 miles in 1 hour, 3 minutes, and 54 4-5 seconds. Flint was a close second, but it was evident from the start that the Brooks boat was the speedier of the two.

The following proved the winners over the others of the 30 that entered: Parker 3d, Bradford, 3d, Walters 4th, Parker 5th, Rice 5th, Luce 7th, Derrell 8th, Cryster 8th, the consolation prize going to a boat driven by Mr. W. Adams.

The officials in charge of proceedings were: General manager, Charles Gould; starter and timer, Paul Kahler; judges, Dr. Fred Snyder, Fred Starke, Charles Cauldwell and Ted Riley. Mr. Riley also was in charge of the donation of prizes.

GIRL WAS KILLED

She Was Struck by a Trolley Car

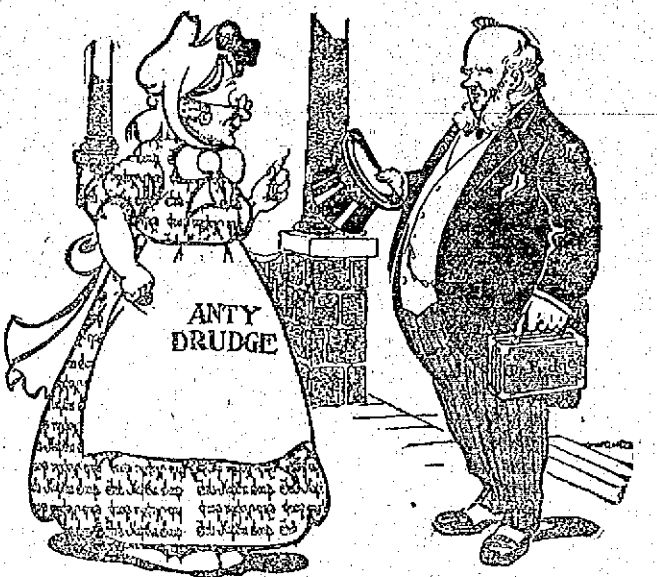

BOSTON, Sept. 5.—Six-year-old Esther L. Nason was fatally crushed under the fender of a trolley car at Union Park and Washington streets yesterday afternoon while her mother looked on from the street, unable to help, and her father and her two-year-old brother, Thomas, were watching her from a window of their home at 36 Union Park street.

Dystanders raised the car to release the little girl, who died at the City hospital shortly after 7 o'clock, meaning the fact that she would not be able to go to school on the opening day, although all her new clothes were bought.

The girl and her mother had gone to a fruit store near their home. While Mrs. Nason was making some purchases she sent Esther across the street to buy a newspaper. Esther returned with a New York paper and the mother, not knowing no Boston papers were published yesterday, sent her back to change it.

As she ran across the street a north-bound trolley car, in charge of Motorman Isaac Robinson, struck her and she fell on top of the fender. Before the car was stopped she rolled under the fender and was wedged between the lifeguard and the pavement. The car was quickly emptied, while a great crowd of excited people gathered. There was no lifting appliance handy, but a score of men raised the car from the prostrate form.

The motorman was not held by the police, as Charles E. Nason, the girl's father who saw the accident, said Robinson was not to blame for striking her although he thought the car might have been stopped much sooner than it was.

Anty Drudge Cures a Sick Headache.

Dr. Fridge—"Does Mrs. Junebride live here?"

Anty Drudge—"No—next door. I found her out in the back kitchen crying over her wash. The poor dear isn't used to such hard work, and she has a sick headache from it. I took the wash from her and quickly finished it with Fels-Naptha. She won't need you again on that score."

Dr. Fridge—"Well, really, Anty Drudge, washday is responsible for more ills than most people imagine. I am glad you have taken Mrs. Junebride under your wing. Fels-Naptha is the ounce of prevention that is worth my pound of cure."

Delicate summer curtains, draperies, tapestries, laces, women's fine raiment—things that would be ruined by washing in the old-fashioned way—can be cleaned at home with Fels-Naptha as well as an expert cleaner could do it.

Fels-Naptha contains no injurious chemicals; nothing that could harm the most delicate fabric. Sets colors instead of making them run as most soaps do.

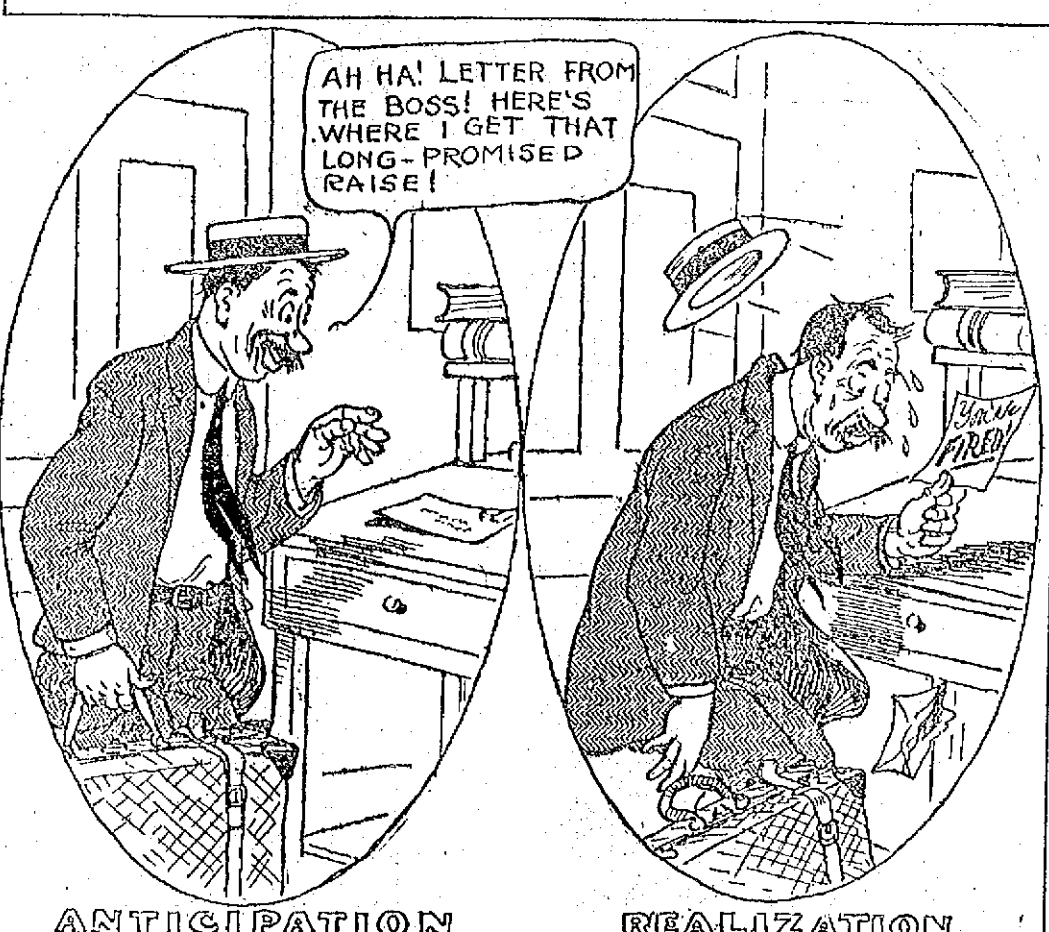

With Fels-Naptha, use only cold or lukewarm water—never hot. That saves the fabric. Hot water would soften it and cause fraying.

Fels-Naptha dissolves the dirt; you don't have to rub it loose as with ordinary soap.

More than a million women do their washing with Fels-Naptha. They have found out that Fels-Naptha is the best and easiest way.

ATTACK ON PRES. TAFT

SENATOR CUMMINGS

Says That Taft Should Not Be Re-elected President

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Asserting that he entertains the highest personal feeling for President Taft but that the nation's chief executive does not take the progressive view, Senator Albert D. Cummings in a signed statement today sets out in a bill of particulars the reasons why he thinks Taft should not be returned to the presidential chair. Among other things mentioned in Taft's alignment Mr. Cummings pointed to the executive's position on Canadian reciprocity.

That measure the senator calls the most unfortunate act of legislation passed within the period of the present administration. Topics of current political discussion from the Payne-Aldrich tariff law to Taft's vetoes of the woolen bill and statehood measures of New Mexico and Arizona including the recall of the judiciary are taken up one by one by Senator Cummings.

In conclusion, Senator Cummings avers that on all vital things the allies and supporters of Taft have been the reactionaries and stand patters in the senate and house and says that if the republican party believes in perpetuating this leadership it cannot do better than nominate President Taft. However, Mr. Cummings says he does not believe in it and is therefore hoping for the nomination of a progressive republican.

THE PROSECUTION ENDS

Cross-Examination of Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., Concluded

CHESTERFIELD COURTHOUSE, Va., Sept. 5.—After asking Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., indicted for wife murder, the one question as to how he could account for the translation of the same shotgun from the hands of Paul Beattie, his cousin, on Saturday night to the hands of the alleged highwayman on the following Tuesday night, the prosecution ended its cross-examination of the prisoner today. The accused denied that he knew his cousin Paul had a gun on the Saturday night in question or that he was with him during that week. The commonwealth thereupon began its attack on the prisoner's story. The rebuttal was practically an attempt to corroborate Paul Beattie as to his alleged meeting with Henry on Thursday night to arrange for the delivery of a shotgun to his cousin on the Saturday following. Several witnesses testified that they saw the two cousins together on Thursday and Mrs. E. J. Houchens, mother-in-law of Paul, stated that Henry Beattie brought Paul home in a machine the same evening. A second point taken by the commonwealth was an assault on E. H. Nebbett's testimony that Paul had a shotgun on the bridge where he worked on Sunday following the night of the alleged transfer of the gun to Henry. Witnesses sustained Paul that he had no gun at the bridge that day and one man said that he was there during the time of Nebbett's visit and saw no gun.

GREAT CROWDS

SAW THE BIRDMEN FLY OVER LOWELL

A large number of Lowell people are complaining of pains in their neck today from over-exercising it to see the aviators pass over the city yesterday. Many of the wise ones went to Fort Hill and from there saw the two machines hover over Lowell, while others were seated on roofs. Some even climbed trees to get a better look. As it was in Lowell yesterday, it was a regular rubber neck affair for the two parades in the morning and afternoon were so attractive that the on-lookers who were numerous, had to do some little stretching to satisfy their curiosity, but their efforts were well rewarded even for looking up, to the skies for the bird men as they appeared over Lowell were very interesting.

Mr. and Mrs. Athanas Dussault and their daughter, Yvonne, of Fall River, are the guests of relatives in this city.

THE ANNUAL REUNION

Of the French-American Historical Society of New England

The 13th annual reunion of the French American Historical society of New England was held in Boston yesterday at the Boston City Club, 6 Beacon street, and was attended by some 45 members, which is considered a small attendance compared with the previous meetings, but this is due to the fact that the gathering took place on a legal holiday.

However, the meeting was none the less interesting and proved very successful, especially the lecture by Albert Bushnell Hart, professor of history at Harvard college. Professor Hart who is president of the American Historical society, one of the foremost American scholars, and author of "The American Nation," and of several other historical works, spoke on the pioneers of the west, and his lecture was listened to with great interest. IN GOLF TOURNEY

Mt. Pleasant Golf Club Had Lovely Day

An all day open handicap tournament was held at the new links of the Mt. Pleasant Golf club yesterday and several hundred people visited the grounds during the day. The feature of the program arranged by the hustling committee was golf but the tennis courts were kept busy, and the members of the club saw that all of the visitors were well cared for, the entertainment committee being made up of people who know how to entertain. There was a large attendance of women and many of the women were present who never witnessed a game of golf. They were instructed as to the game and a very large gallery enjoyed the sport. There were about 35 men in the open handicap and good scores were the rule, especially considering the fact that the course is a new one and most of the players beginners. E. L. Childs and F. L. Knapp were the winners of the two prizes, each turning in a card of 82.

While the police have a clue to the identity of the boy who pulled in the alarm from box 225 at 2:11 o'clock the same afternoon, he has not been apprehended as yet.

PLEASANT WHIST PARTY

A pretty gathering took place last night at the Notre Dame de Lourdes parochial school hall in Branch street, the occasion being a whist party and entertainment given to the young ladies who helped in the recent "refectory" of the parish. THIRTEEN INJURED

Cars Were in Collision at Newburyport

NEWBURYPORT, Sept. 5.—Thirteen persons were injured, two seriously, when an electric car of the Southern New Hampshire Traction company crashed into the rear of another car a quarter of a mile from this city yesterday.

Blame for the accident is fixed by the passengers upon Motorman Brewster of the rear car. According to the passengers, Brewster's car was following the first car several yards behind on the way to Salisbury beach.

They claim that Brewster's attention was distracted by a train on the railroad track running parallel with the streetcar tracks, and he did not notice that the first car had slowed up. A shout from the passengers warned him when the collision was inevitable, and he shut off power and jammed on the brakes too late.

HE KILLED HIMSELF

Man Committed Suicide in a Cemetery

BOSTON, Sept. 5.—Standing over the graves of his wife and daughter, in Forest Hills cemetery, Christian Raugh, of 420 Laurel street, Manchester, N. H., ended his life today by sending a revolver bullet through his right temple. Raugh, who was 66 years old, formerly lived in Jamaica Plain, not far from the cemetery. His daughter, Sophie, died four years ago and his wife died a year later. Remains of the cemetery head the sound of the shot and a search disclosed the body. Death had been instantaneous.

BRABANT-BRUNELLE

At 7 o'clock yesterday morning at St. Jean Baptiste church, Mr. Aristide Brabant and Miss Amanda Brunelle were united in the bonds of matrimony, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Fr. Amyot, O. M. I. The witnesses were Messrs. Adam Lacroix and Alexandre Brabant.

LAMARRE-EMOND

A very pretty wedding was solemnized yesterday morning at Notre Dame de Lourdes church in Branch street, when Mr. Edgar Lamarre and Miss Marie B. Emond were united in the bonds of matrimony. The ceremony was performed and a nuptial mass celebrated at 8 o'clock by the pastor, Rev. Leon Lamothé, O. M. I. A large number of friends of the couple were present at the ceremony, and the choir of the Notre Dame de Lourdes sodality of which the bride was a member, sang during the mass. Miss Alma Alexander presiding at the organ.

After the mass the couple and their witnesses who were their fathers, Messrs. Theophile Lamarre and Wilfrid Emond, repaired to the home of the latter, 23 Spring court, where a dainty wedding dinner was served. Mr. and Mrs. Lamarre left on the 1:45 o'clock train for Revere where they will spend the week. On their return Saturday a reception will be tendered them at the home of the bridegroom's parents, 188 Salem street, where they will make their home.

MILLS ARE RUNNING

Boom in Manufacturing Business in New England Began Today

BOSTON, Sept. 5.—In many cities, towns and villages of New England today textile mills employing an aggregate of 55,000 persons resumed operations after a shut-down varying from eight days to two weeks or more. The assumption of activities was hailed with delight by business men, who have lost money by the severe curtailment policy which has been effective since spring. In a number of places the mills have been idle six weeks in all since the series of shut-downs began.

Curtailling of the production of cotton goods will continue at a number of places including Fall River until the raw cotton situation and goods market further improve. Manufacturers hope, however, that the worst is over.

President Wood of the American Wool Co., which controls 30 mills in New England and New York state says that the woolen business is improving and that the mills are more active than for some time.

A feature of the renewed activity reported by the textile centers is the reopening of the Greenwoods, Cotton Duck Co.'s mills at New Hartford, Barkhamsted and Canton, which were closed ten years ago when the plant was purchased by the United States Cotton Duck Co. The mills will be operated by Clarence Whitman of Providence and will manufacture silk, employing 2,000 operatives.

A revival of industry in Conway, Mass., is expected to follow the purchase by the Bullard Thread Co. of Holbrook of the Tucker & Cook mill here. The mill has been closed for two years and a number of families have left town as a result. The new owners announce that they will repair the plant and put it in operation as soon as possible. Sixty hands formerly were employed. Among the numerous mills which put their machinery in motion today were the following:

Anoskeag Mfg. Co.'s 17, cotton and worsted mills, Manchester, N. H., 18,000 operatives; Stark cotton, duck mills, Manchester, N. H., 1,500 hands; Bigelow carpet mills, Clinton, 1,900 hands; Lancaster gingham mills, Clinton, 2,400; Salloway hosiery mills, Franklin, N. H., 600; Salmon Falls Mfg. The big cotton mills of the York corporation of Saco, Me., and the Penner and Laconia cotton mills of the Pepperell Mfg. Co. at Biddeford will resume work next Monday morning together with the Saco and Pepperell machine works. The three employ about 1,600 persons. Ten of the Fall River corporations which are shut down will probably start again on Monday next.

All of the cotton mills controlled by the J. W. Mfg. Co. in Rhode Island have resumed operations. Another of these mills had been idle since early in July.

THIRD ANNIVERSARY

Of Foundation of Notre Dame Church

The third anniversary of the foundation of Notre Dame de Lourdes church in Branch street, was observed in a fitting manner last Sunday, the ceremony being held at high mass celebrated at 10:30 o'clock. The choir of the parish made the choir decorated for the occasion, while the main altar was brilliantly illuminated with incense and light and candles. The congregation was very large and the ceremony was very impressive.

Rev. Fr. Magnan officiated at high mass, and Rev. Fr. Lamothé, O. M. I., master of the parish, made the announcements, while the sermon was preached by Rev. Fr. Barrette, O. M. I., who spoke on the "Dedication of a Catholic Church."

The choir, under the able direction of Mr. H. A. Ruicot, Miss Alma Alexander presiding at the organ, rendered the harmonized mass of the second tone, and at the offertory, Voltaire's "Tou Panchra Est," was sung in a delightful manner by a quartet composed as follows: Miss Irene W. A. Parthenais, soprano; Miss Cora Renaud, alto; Mr. Edouard Gaudette, tenor; and Mr. H. A. Ruicot, basso. Mr. Gaudette sustained the solos and sang well.

At high solemn vespers were sung and the choir rendered the Gregorian psalms. Notre Dame de Lourdes parish was founded three years ago last Sunday by the late Fr. Catonnet, O. M. I., at that time pastor of St. Joseph's parish, who purchased the Tabernacle church in Branch street, and converted it into a Catholic church, giving it the name of Notre Dame de Lourdes. The first pastor of the parish was the Rev. Fr. Brillard, O. M. I., who is now stationed in Wisconsin, where he went a year ago for his health.

Rev. Fr. Lamothé, O. M. I., is the actual pastor of the church and under his direction the parish has made much progress. He is ably assisted by the Rev. Frs. Magnan and Barrette, O. M. I.

A parochial school was started in the rear of the church sometime after the dedication of the church, and last year four more classes were added, when the blacksmith shop adjoining the rectory was purchased and converted into a school building with a large hall on the second floor. This school opened this morning after the summer vacation with over 200 children. At three o'clock this afternoon the children assembled in the church and they listened to instructions given by the Rev. Fr. Barrette, this being followed by the benediction of the blessed sacrament.

Charles J. Morse, former superintendent of streets, is wearing one of those broad smiles and when people ask him what the occasion is for the smile Charlie informs them that his pet mare which was stolen Saturday morning has been recovered.

The horse was driven over the road to Lawrence and later the pair who took the animal returned to Lowell and when passing through Methuen street near the corner of Beacon street a conductor on the Christian Hill line recognized the horse and informed the police and as a result the police succeeded in locating the animal in the vicinity of Lakeview avenue and Ennell street where it had been abandoned by the people who took it.

SENATOR LORIMER

Had a Narrow Escape From Death

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—United States Senator Lorimer had a narrow escape from death yesterday when an airplane driven by August Kuzick knocked off his hat at High lake. The senator was ready to make a speech to a crowd when Kuzick started to fly in his biplane. The aviator lost control of his machine which took a dangerous tilt to one side and swooped down over the crowd. Everybody got out of the way except Senator Lorimer. The senatorial headgear was struck by the tip of a plane and sent whirling out over the crowd. Then the machine hit a tree and fell to the ground. Kuzick was slightly hurt.

THE NASHUA FAIR

50,000 Present at the First Day of Event

NASHUA, N. H., Sept. 5.—The greatest crowd that has ever assembled on one day in one enclosure in New Hampshire attended the first fair of the New Hampshire fair association yesterday, more than 50,000 men, women and children attending. The gates were officially thrown open at 9 o'clock, but the crowds arrived as early as 8 o'clock.

Some prime events of horse racing had to be postponed by the fair management until today, as automobilists anxious to see the arrival and departure of monoplane and biplane scheduled in the $10,000 prize contest had been allotted space on the track, as well as more than 5000 of the great crowd, making horse racing an impossibility.

These events will be driven off today, however, with the other events scheduled for the day.

OPEN AIR MEETING

On South Common Addressed by Distinguished Speakers

Favored by ideal weather, reviewed by city officials and cheered by throngs, the Labor day program closed with a big mass meeting on the South common, yesterday. The speakers included John Golden, president of the United Textile Workers of America, and Mrs. Conboy of Boston, general organizer of the United Textile Workers and national vice president of the Women's Trade Union League.

MR. JOHN GOLDEN

John J. Mahoney
This meeting was presided over by John J. Mahoney, president of the Trades and Labor council. He said it was seven years since the labor men of Lowell were given opportunity for a genuine home celebration. On account of little things happening here, we were practically driven out of the city on this day, of all days, dedicated to the laborers. But labor has come to its own, and we are here tonight without a trace on the common and without tickets of admission. All we ask of you who are not with us, is to remember that the trades unions fight your battles as well as the battles of those within our ranks.

John Golden Speaks
Mr. Golden was introduced as the first speaker. In part, he said: "Today the man of brain, the man of muscle and intelligence, will celebrate the day set apart in his honor. In the city of Boston, high on 20,000 men and women are marching its principal streets celebrating the anniversary of Labor day. In every city and town, in almost every village and hamlet, this day is now looked upon as one set apart for the man who tills as a wage-earner, and in this beloved city of yours, the organized workers have cooperated with the rest of your honored citizens to make this labor's best day an event long to be remembered and cherished; it is well that we should celebrate the Fourth of July. It brings back to our minds the many sacrifices made, and the splendid patriotism shown by our forefathers when our country was in danger. It is well to celebrate, and more beautiful to my mind that we should, even at Christmas time, recall him who sacrificed his life that men might be saved. It is also well that on this day dedicated to labor, we, the organized workers of the country, should show the rest of the community the wonderful progress made, and the tremendous amount of good work accomplished since we celebrated our first labor day 25 years ago.

Let us take our own beloved state, for example—20 years ago there were few laws on our statute books that tended towards the lightening of the burden of those who toil, wear in and year out the labor unions of the state have persistently petitioned the several legislatures for the passage of such measures as would tend to lighten the conditions under which men, and more especially women and children were compelled to work. You may search the statutes of our commonwealth through and through, and I challenge you to find one solitary humane law that is there today, whether it be in the interest of the common laborer or one that protects our women and children in the factories and workshops of the state that was not secured almost wholly through the persistent and untiring efforts of organized labor and its friends. It is only too true that many times our petitioning has been vain, even when the will of the people had been emphatically expressed in both branches of the legislature. Nevertheless it is such acts as these that arouse the working men to a sense of their duty, and I venture to predict that from now on, instead of knocking at the door and pleading for labor legislation, many times being either refused or ignored, we shall from time to time send men who will be duly qualified to enter our various state legislatures, and our national congress and demand in the name of the toiling masses of the country, the passage of such bills as the anti-injunction bill, the eight-hour bill and a uniform bill to abolish child labor. All that organized labor demands is that the laws for all and special privileges for none. We must and will be satisfied with nothing less.

In the great industrial city of Pittsburgh, Pa. in the year 1881 was laid the foundation and groundwork of the American Federation of Labor, a small handful of delegates representing a few thousand workers, nevertheless that great federation was built on a foundation of fraternity and brotherly love, and year by year that great federation has continued to grow and expand until today it stands as the most powerful, the most powerful, and withal the largest army of organized workers in the civilized world. The labor movement represents in concrete form the discontent of the toiling masses with unjust burdens they are compelled to bear, the labor union seeks to insure no one, but it does seek, and will continue to seek and secure a fair and equitable share of the wealth that labor creates. We all hear the cry from the employer, "I am allowed to run my own business in my own way? I cannot help, say no, and I feel assured every fair minded man will agree, that when any employer seeks to run his business in such a way, that it means unfair wages and unjust conditions for those whom he employs, which means the creating of an unfair competition against the employer who is inclined to be reasonable, the wage earner has both a legal and moral right to register his or her protest, and will continue to do so, as long as the injustice remains. In spite of all the Citizens' Alliances, I have no misgivings as to the future success and growth of our labor movement, our motto is to build up the Citizens Alliance and the C. W. Post's aim is to destroy; the labor unions stand for all that tends to the uplift of the human family, and you may rest assured will be recognized as an American institution, long after the Citizens' Alliance, or its kindred organizations are sleeping in their unknown graves.

The years ago it was considered almost a crime to belong to a labor union, today thousands and thousands of men and women are marching with head erect, with a union button in their coat or a union badge on their breast, looking the whole world in the face, and proud of the fact of being a component part of the great army of organized labor. Assailed and vilified as no other movement ever was, maligned and misrepresented on every possible occasion, we have still continued to grow both great and strong. The trades union movement has withstood both capitalistic and government tyranny, has been the means of increasing wages and shortening the hours of labor, not alone for its own members, but for many thousands of others, who were and are at the present time always ready to take advantage of any and all concessions obtained through the efforts of organized labor, yet refuse to pay one solitary cent, or raise a finger in labor's cause, but on the other hand seek every opportunity to belittle the movement that has done so much for them. The labor unions have taken thousands of little children from the mills and workshops, and given them an opportunity of enjoying God's glorious sunshine, besides paying the way towards giving them an education to equip them for the battle of life. If the labor union had done nothing else, the work it has done against child labor justifies its existence.

James H. Carmichael
James H. Carmichael urged the importance of organization, and said that it was a movement for humanity in general and something that should be heartily and sincerely encouraged.

Spoke To Women
Mrs. Sara Conboy spoke to the women on the importance of organization in the textile trades. As a carpet weaver, she said, she is well acquainted with mill life. "The great trouble with women in the textile industries," she said, "has been that they hoped some day in the future to leave the mill and have homes of their own. Some have done so. But how many of you are able to stay at home after you do marry? Not one-tenth of those who leave the mills to marry. Why? Because the men are not well enough organized to get a wage sufficient to keep their wives out of the factories. Little ones are left day after day in the care of strangers, while mothers go into the mills as wage earners for the family. The time will come, when, whether you want to or not, your employers will force you to organize. They cannot crowd you down much lower, and let you live. If women only knew what organization would mean to them, there is no capitalist on earth that could resist them." She then spoke of the strike of the Rockport carpet mill workers, resulting in a reduction of wages, and told of the women standing in all sorts of weather through January, February, March and April, fighting a million-dollar corporation, and winning the fight. "They were able to win it, only because they were organized."

Mayor's Tribute To Labor
Mayor John F. Meehan spoke of the splendid success of the parade and paid glowing tribute to labor. He said that in a great textile city like Lowell it behooves all of the people to band themselves together in order to improve their conditions and to fight against the encroachment of the capitalists and the infringement of the public corporations. "We are here to assert that there shall be but one law in the land," he said, "and that it shall be applied with impartiality to all citizens, and that whoever encourages and sanctions unnatural and cruel practices against the workers, which would not and could not be practiced upon another, is himself a breeder of lawlessness than whom none could be worse."

"We are here to announce to the world that there can be no peace in the evolution of the proper relations between men who employ labor and those who have their labor to sell until there is equality before the law, and such an operation of the courts as shall make all men sure that justice is not a commodity of the rich and violence an unnatural method against any particular class of citizens."

William E. Sproule
"It is organized dollars against organized workers," said William E. Sproule, president of the Lowell Street Railway, Lowell's union. "The trades union is nothing but a working men's business organization," he said, "and in speaking of labor legislation in this state, Mr. Sproule said: 'The house is fair but the senate is rotten.'"

Michael A. Lee
There was a short address by Michael A. Lee, business agent of the Building Trades' craft, and the last speaker was Millard W. Stevenson, secretary of the Central Labor union of Lawrence.

There was a band concert by the American band, R. A. Griffiths, leader, and the mass meeting, as a whole, was a great big success.

GRAND LABOR PARADE

The Carpenters' union had the best motto: "We've Saved Off Four Hours," and received a prize of $2. "Be With Us in the Spring" was the motto carried by the Painters' union, which won the second prize.

There was but one trade feature and that was entered by the Wool Sorters' union and showed sheep shearing and the process of wool sorting. The union was awarded a prize of $20.

The painters presented a very neat appearance. The men were attired in white trousers, white shirts, white caps with purple bands and purple ties. They had several mottos: "All We Ask is Fair Play," "Ask For This (a union label) On All Signs," "Be With Us in the Spring" and "We Are Looking for a Half Holiday With Full Pay."

The carpenters with white hats, white shirts and dark trousers made a fine showing.

The Leatherworkers
The Leatherworkers had the largest number of men in line and they presented an excellent appearance, the members being attired in dark trousers and white shirts with blue neckties and dark blue caps.

Coal teamsters' union appeared in dark trousers and black shirts and ties. They wore black hats. The Buildings Laborers' union appeared in buff colored duck trousers with white shirts and blue and white neckties. They wore buff colored hats. The Painters' union made the neatest appearance. The men wore dark trousers and white coats and black skull caps. About a dozen members of the union who could not stand the march rode in baronages. There were many business houses and residences along the line of march which were decorated in an elaborate manner.

THE AFTERNOON

THE SPORTS ATTRACTED A LARGE ATTENDANCE

Thousands of people gathered on the South common yesterday afternoon to witness the sports conducted under the auspices of the Trades and Labor council. The program was carefully arranged and carried out in a manner which reflected much credit on the committee in charge. The feature of the program was the battle between the O. M. I. Cadets and Dixwells, which resulted in a victory for the former team by the close score of 10 to 9. Owing to the length of the program the game lasted for but six innings and although the battling was spasmodic it was a case of nip and tuck up to the final inning. Each team scored four runs in the first inning and the Cadets scored six in the second inning, the Dixwells failing to send a man across the plate. It looked at this point as though it was going to be a cricket instead of baseball score with the Cadets on the home end, but in the fourth the Cadets fell by the wayside and their opponents sent four men home. There was nothing doing in the fifth and in the sixth the Dixwells scored one run.

The makeup of the teams was as follows:
Cadets—Gannon, c; McCarthy, p; Wholey, b; Miller, 2b; Sheen, 3b; Mansfield, ss; O'Donnell, lf; Thomas, cf; and Hartley rf, and Dixwells: Hennessy 2b; Liddle, lf; Ducharme, 3b; McCarthy, c; O'Brien, 1b; Kilbride, ss and p; Marcotte ss and cf; Allen, lf and rf, and Prescott, p and rf. John Neeson umpired.

The score by innings:
O. M. I. Cadets... 4 6 0 0 0 0—10
Dixwells... 1 0 0 4 0 1—9

Michael Scollan won the 100 yards dash, getting $3 for first prize; Joe Christo was second, lifting $2. In the quarter mile run Frank Maloney won first, taking a prize valued at $3. Christo was second, lifting a prize valued at $2.

Tug of War
The tug-of-war attracted considerable attention and enthusiasm ran high. There were six teams in the contest and talk about your pulls, those who participated in the match had political pulls beaten to a standstill. The first heat was between the Building Laborers' union and the Coal Teamsters' union. The teams were made up as follows: Building Laborers—Joseph Michaud, anchor; John Buey, Manuel Peterson, John Kennedy and John Lardner. Coal Teamsters' union—William Mulhinch, anchor; Jeremiah Goodheart, W. H. Clifford, John Taylor and John Arlan.

Inside of a minute the husky members of the Building Laborers' union pulled the Coal Teamsters off their feet.

Carpenters' union 1910 had as contestants Carpenters' union 49. The teams lined up as follows: Local 1910—Napoleon Noel, anchor; Timothy Roy, Philip Roy, anchor; George Boulton and John T. Martin, George Boulton and John T. Martin, Local 49—H. Hanson, H. B. Wells, H. S. Wilbur, Joseph Pigeon and Edward Ryan, anchor. Local 1910 won the heat.

The Brewery Teamsters' union was pitted against the coal teamsters. The brewery teamsters were: Daniel Finnegan, anchor; Matt F. Grant, William Driscoll, John Hartigan and Michael Hynes. It was a good struggle for a few seconds, and then the brewery teamsters won. In the next heat the French carpenters, after a hard pull, beat the building laborers, and later the French carpenters outpulled the brewery teamsters. The French carpenters, of local 1910, took first prize, $20, with the brewery teamsters, second, raking off $10.

There were four entrants in the mile run, amateur. They were Frank Maloney of the C. Y. M. L., Louis Florey of the C. Y. M. L., Geo. Foley of the Sacred Heart and John O'Dea of the S. E. A. C. Foley set the pace but he over-exerted himself in the first part of the race and was forced to drop out at the end of the fourth lap. The battle was then between Maloney and Florey with Maloney in the lead. When the last lap was reached Florey forged to the front and won by a couple of feet. The first prize was a $5 pair of shoes and the second a $3 hat. If the half mile run for union men only, John Lynch of the car barn force of the Bay State Street Railway company took first, with John Buey second. The prizes were $5 and $3.

Three broad jumps and a running broad jump had been scheduled, but there were no entrants. During the afternoon there was a scramble for nickels in a bag of flour.

Michael A. Lee, John J. Mahoney, Timothy Rourke and Charles E. Anderson were in general charge of the games.

PARTY MAROONED

Held on Governor's Island All Night

BOSTON, Sept. 5.—A large party that went down the harbor to Governor's Island yesterday on the power boat Tidy-Ady had to extend the visit over night because the boat that conveyed the excursionists down, which they had every reason to suppose would bring them back, took fire at the wharf at the island last evening and was burned to the water's edge.

The boat is owned by Chas. Platon of Charlestown and had been making trips down the harbor all summer. The fire was caused, so the harbor police say, by the explosion of a cabin lamp. The loss was about $1800.

out-of-town guards from the railroad station and the square to Mt. Washington street where that division formed. The latter all of which are of the second regiment of the French-American Volunteer Brigade of New England, turned out in large numbers, the guards and their captains being as follows:

Garde Nationale, Haverhill, Captain Adelard St. Jean; Garde Champlain, Manchester, Captain Philippe Doucette; Garde St. George, Manchester, Captain P. J. The parade consisted of four divisions. Xavier Delisle, chief of staff, and Joseph L. Lamoureux, chief of staff, the first division was composed of the military organizations headed by Colonel Albert Bergeron of the second regiment of the F. A. V. B. of New England, and also captain of Garde Frontenac of this city. This division made a decided hit and was warmly applauded all along the route.

The second division, Wilfred Lajoie, marshal, was also very pretty. It was headed by "Notre Dame de Pitte" band of North Cambridge, who played delightfully along the march. Then came the float representing "Faith, Hope and Charity," made by a number of pretty and artistically gowned young ladies. This float was gotten up by Court St. Antoine, C. E. F. Another very interesting float in this division was that of Court St. Paul, C. O. F., representing "Jacques-Cartier," planting the first cross on the Canadian soil. The float of the Union Samuel de Champlain, "Champlain consecrating Quebec to the Virgin," was very well done and also bore some relation to the ceremony of the day while "Washington and Lafayette" as put up by Washington council, U. S. J. B. d'A., was a pretty piece of work.

Frederick Giroux was marshal of the third division which consisted of the residents of Pawtucketville. The latter turned out in large numbers, and they had two floats, "Jeanne Mance," first Catholic teacher in America, and the "Fifteen Mysteries of the Rosary."

ITCHING SKIN

Eczema and similar skin diseases rarely cure themselves, but grow worse from week to week until the sufferer is nearly driven mad with intense irritation. Don't waste time taking internal medicine. Get a box of Cadum, the new medical compound, and apply it immediately. The itching will stop at once, and a great improvement will be noticed overnight. People who have itched and scratched for years find speed and rest soon after Cadum is applied. Cadum is also for pimples, rash, blotches, ulcers, eruptions, scaly skin, chafing, piles, etc.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

IDEAL WEATHER

Responsible for Increase in Auto Touring

Sunday and yesterday were ideal days for touring through the country or beaches in automobiles and many of the local enthusiasts made long trips, while hundreds of out of town machines passed through Lowell, either on their way to or from up near Hampshire and the White Mountains.

Inasmuch as Sunday and the holiday came together it gave the business man who owned a machine a splendid opportunity to make a long trip, spending Sunday night at one of the beach or mountain resorts. The roads were in the best of condition owing to the recent rains, and the pleasure of a trip was not marred by the usual heavy dust.

Sunday and yesterday there was a continual stream of out of town machines passing through Lowell. Some of the autos were headed towards the north where parties were to spend a day or two, while those that were piled high with luggage and carried towards Boston indicated the return of a touring party.

Although the evenings at this time of the year are rather cool for touring, it is well protected from the wind, it is undoubtedly the best time of the year to go on pleasure trips.

Harry Pitts, proprietor of the Pitts Auto Supply, in Hurd street, while not being actively engaged in repair work, is one of the most sought for men in the city when a part of the mechanism of a customer's car gets out of gear, for his customers found through past consultation with Harry that he understands perfectly all the details of the intricate machinery of the different cars. Although Harry does not repair the cars brought to his establishment, believing that in so doing he is diverting money from the pocket of another, he assumes the role of "suggested" mechanic, and has lent his assistance at various times, have lately christened him the "auto physician," and Harry through his willingness to assist a brother, when the mechanism of his car is out of order, deserves all honor which may be attached to the nom de plume.

Ed. H. Mercier, owner of the famous delivery of this city which bears his name, has arranged for the carrying of local persons to the aviation meet, which is being held in Squantum under the auspices of the Harvard Aeronautical society. The arrangements which Mr. Mercier has made will carry with them the full privileges of the field and all parties which he brings to the meet will receive the best treatment from the officials, and nothing but the best, for Ed is painstaking and does not think about the expense of satisfying his parties. His rates are practically as cheap as traveling to the field by rail and the annoyance is reduced to a minimum; there being no extended wait in transportation. Tomorrow will be the big day at the meet and any local parties thinking of making the trip should consult Mr. Mercier for rates before arranging for the journey. Remember Mercier's cars have never been known to fail, in bringing a person back, Ed's motto is "There and Back Always," and although he has been in the delivery business for several years he has as yet to hear the first complaint from a customer relative to a trip, locally or out of town.

fun out of their parts. Lucy Daly furnished the balance of fun of the evening, drawing applause especially by her songs in the second act, when in male garb she shone to advantage.

The most amusing scene is at the meeting of the "Local Order of Always" and "Never Vote Club," where Ward, in the role of Mr. Street, is elected president and appoints Volke under the guise of Mrs. Plump, secretary and treasurer, and the latter takes up a hard-earned collection, which the two devote to their own immediate uses.—Adv.

"THE THIEF"

That stirring melodrama "The Thief" was played in an admirable manner at the Opera house yesterday afternoon and evening. The play has been given here before, and is always well worth seeing. The plot shows a wealthy man, Raymond Legard, who has lost money that could not have been stolen except by somebody well acquainted with his household. He brings a detective into his home as a guest, without letting any other member of the family know who the man is or what his business is. In brief time the detective finds that the man's son was the thief. The father is heartbroken and has decided to send the young man to South America on business, when it is revealed that the real thief is the young wife of Raymond, a dear friend of Raymond, who resided in the latter's home. The husband is accused by the husband who accidentally found the money in her bureau and she also accuses her of infidelity in being in collusion with Raymond's son, who visited her house frequently. The scenes between the husband and wife when her crime was found out were thrilling in the extreme and the strain upon the actress, Miss Marion Sherwood, was such as but few actresses could long withstand. The youth was ready to embark when the girl wife who had previously told her husband all and also the husband confessed to her, now confessed to the boy's father. Then Richard Volson and his guilty wife ask to go to South America instead of the boy and thus they are again united. The wife's humiliation at being convicted of stealing in order to dress as well as other society women, and the husband's love for her, was brilliantly portrayed, but her redemption of the charge of infidelity was a piece of splendid acting. F. R. Her, some who assumed the part of the husband played the role admirably, while Miss Sherwood who bears the heavy parts throughout the play is equal to the demands of the situation at every point. W. F. Cranfield as Raymond sustained the character of a very able man while C. H. Silver, mail as the son and Isabelle O'Neill as the wife of Raymond played their respective roles very acceptably.

"AT THE OLD CROSS ROADS" "At The Old Cross Roads" begins an engagement at the Opera house Thursday. "At The Old Cross Roads" tells a most charming story of the south. It is the story of a young man, Charles Stevens, in the heavy role is good, as he always is. Miss Langdon and Miss Graham in minor roles enhance the charming appearance of the different scenes, while William Healey, Charles Cymbro and Dan McCabe make the most of the comic and light parts. The company will present as next week's attraction Robson and Crane's great comedy success, "The Henrietta," in which Mr. Meek will appear in Stuart Robson's great role, "Bertie the Lamb." The subscription list is still open and is growing daily. Great interest is manifest in the mispelled word competition in the program. Box office open daily at 10 o'clock.

Next Monday Keith's new and beautiful vaudeville theatre will open its doors for the first time and as an opening attraction will present seven of the strongest acts in vaudeville. All will be in readiness for the opening event and the sale of tickets will start on Thursday when the box office will open at 10 o'clock. Tickets may be ordered in advance by telephone, after noon on Thursday. In regard to the sale of seats the management will treat all alike and first come first served will be the rule for all time at the box office. The Boston papers

AT LAKEVIEW PARK

As a brilliant wind-up of the season at Lakeview Park, the Bay State St. Ry. Co. has arranged for an unusually spectacular exhibition of fireworks next Thursday evening, Sept. 7. The contract for producing this display has been given to the American Fireworks Co., which will give some of the sensational exhibits of "Italian" Pyrotechnics for which it is famous.

The Italian fireworks artists can always be depended upon for something novel and unique in the effects produced, something entirely unlike the usual run of such exhibitions, and they will do so in this case.

Their bombs, shells and other high-air work is particularly gorgeous and striking in its surprising novelties. For this occasion they will also introduce some new set-pieces. Among these will be seen the Birds of Paradise, the Fountain of Vesuvius, the Flying Eagles, the Magnesia piece, the Whirling Vipers, and others.

Striking features of the high air work will be the Ascension of the Girandole, showing a liquid ball of fire 500 feet into the air with accompanying blinding showers of gold, the Pu-patella Shell which bursts without light in 14 detonations forming a many sided polygon, the Tracoe shell which bursts with 500 rattling explosions giving the effect of a terrific bombardment of infantry and numerous other startling and beautiful effects never before seen in this section.

GOTCH HOLDS TITLE

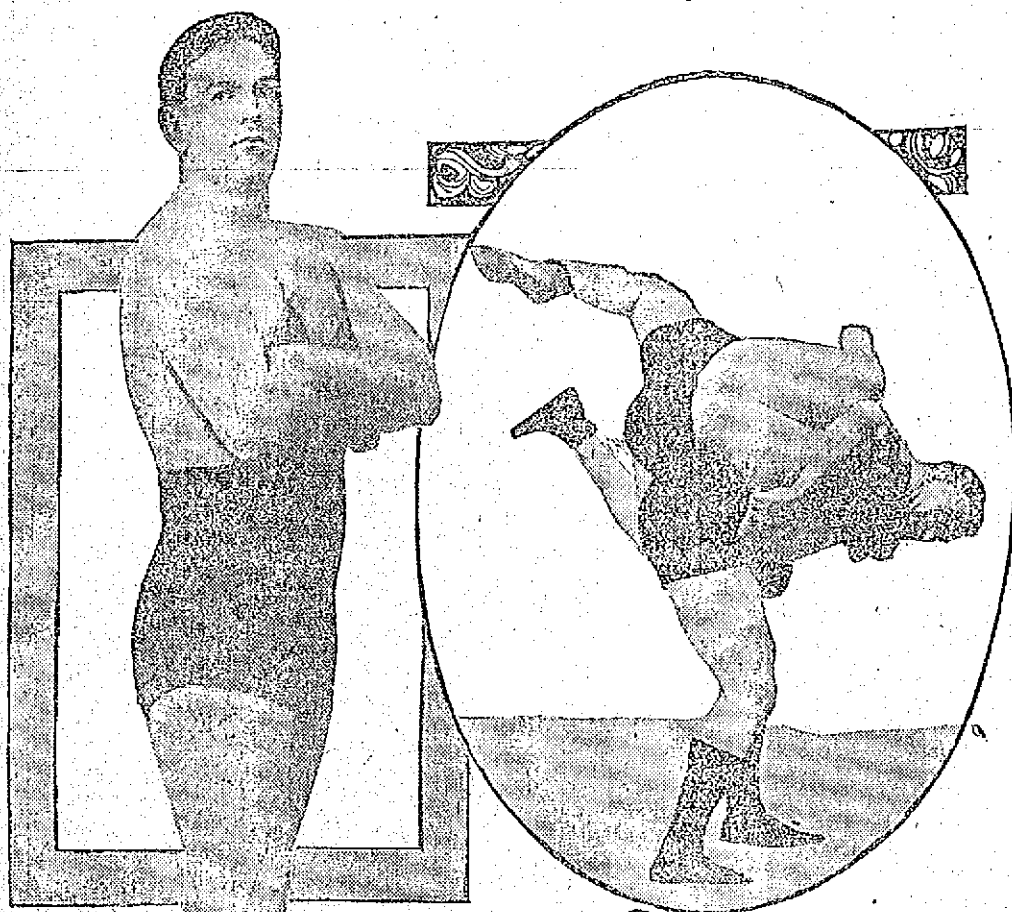

World Champion Was Too Much for the "Russian Lion"

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—The geographical center of the wrestling world was more than ever fortified at Humboldt, Ia., the home of Frank Gotch, yesterday. Moreover, Referee Ed Smith, who proclaimed the world's champion victor over George Hackenschmidt, declared that for the next ten years there would be no shift of the wrestling capital, unless Gotch should choose to change his place of residence.

The Russian's showing was pitiful. The crowd decreed that he had quit, but the defeated challenger, through copious tears, averred that he entered the arena with a wrenched knee on which Gotch worked and specific reduced him to a state of comparative helplessness. The foreigner's nerves were on edge. He spent a sleepless night and was pale when he crawled through the ropes.

Famous Toe-Hold Used

The first fall resulted from a reverse body hold, after the men had struggled 11:15. That terrible toe hold for which Gotch is famous was responsible for the second fall. He clamped it upon the left foot of Hackenschmidt after the second fall had gone 5:32-1-5.

HACKENSCHMIDT EXECUTING CROSS BUTT LOCK

ropes. Dr. J. J. Davis, who examined both wrestlers before they went to the mat, declared that though there might be something wrong with Hackenschmidt's knee it was not evident during the examination.

While it took Gotch 14m 18s to gain the first fall, the second fall required only 6m 32s, which, Hackenschmidt's friends assert, proved that his knee was in bad condition.

Referee Smith is authority for the statement that when Gotch secured the fatal toe-lock which won him the match, Hackenschmidt cried out, "Don't hurt my toe," and a second later, "Don't break my leg," and fell.

Scarcely had he obtained the grip when Gotch brought him to the mat. Hackenschmidt's own statement, that it was the easiest world's championship ever won, tells the story of the bout almost as well as it could be told. Gotch never was in serious difficulty at any time during the match. Neither was he forced to extend himself to win. The down secured in all, perhaps, half a dozen dangerous holds on his antagonist.

Hackenschmidt obtained a body hold on Gotch that brought him to the mat. But the champion was on the mat for only a few seconds. Then he was only down as far as his knees. Almost before the "lion" realized that his opponent was in a dangerous predicament Gotch had wriggled out of the hold and was bounding across the ring to safety.

For his defeat Hackenschmidt offers but the one excuse—that his left knee, which was injured in training two weeks ago, weakened under the pressure of the iron hands of Gotch, and it was useless for him to continue at the risk of being permanently injured. But regardless of whether there be any merit to Hackenschmidt's claim that his knee was in bad shape, it cannot be denied that the challenger was in an state mentally to enter into a grueling contest. Hackenschmidt was unprepared before he entered the arena. Whether it was from worry over his injured knee, or his fretting over his match generally, cannot be said.

Parallel to Jaffries Case
Like Jaffries, however, the Russian lion spent a sleepless night before the battle, although his trainers tried every means to put him at ease. They had him room with John Koch, a German, and one of Koch's chief duties was to sing songs of the fatherland to the Russian, and try to soothe him. But Hackenschmidt would not be calmed. After trying vainly for several hours to go to sleep, he arose and pleaded with his trainers to give him drugs that would make him rest. They refused to do this, and Hackenschmidt retired to fret the night away.

In the minds of the vast crowd that saw the match there was no doubt as to which was the better wrestler. Gotch outpointed, outgeneraled and outgamed his opponent. The Iowa appeared faster than he ever had been before. His condition was perfect. He entered the ring filled with confidence, and at every stage of the bout he smiled as though he never had the slightest doubt as to the ultimate outcome.

On the other hand, Hackenschmidt seemed ill at ease. During the first fall he went about his work with his face set and anything but the gleam of confidence in his eye. And after Gotch had gained the first fall, the courage of the Russian appeared to have oozed out of him. With shoulders slumped and eyes downcast, he sat in his corner awaiting the starting signal.

In a box in the center of the grand stand sat Gotch's mother and his young bride. Frequently while in the thick of the fray Gotch found time to look toward the two women and smile. Hackenschmidt was heartbroken over the result of the bout. In his dressing room for half an hour he sat in his wrestling garb crying and refusing the proffered attentions and cheering words of his trainers.

Gotch only smiled after the match.

was over. He said the result was exactly as he thought it would be.

The Wrestling

The story of the actual wrestling that was done is soon told. Time was called at 3:15 o'clock. The contestants immediately locked heads and for five minutes tugged at each others' neck, wrists and arms.

After making several false passes at Hackenschmidt's knees, Gotch finally obtained a knee hold at the end of a half minute. Once the Iowa's massive hands were fastened on Hackenschmidt's left leg the Russian went down. He struggled out of that and a subsequent hold of the same kind and then became the aggressor. At 10 minutes Hackenschmidt secured a body hold and put Gotch to the mat, but he was down only an instant.

After 13 minutes of wrestling Gotch started Hackenschmidt downward with a knee hold, faked a catch and then quickly worked the Russian into a half-nelson. They struck the mat together, head to head. Then Gotch pivoted on his opponent's stomach, clamped on a reverse body hold, and the first fall was over.

The first five minutes of the second fall was a repetition of that period in the first. But suddenly Gotch reached down with his right hand, grasped Hackenschmidt's left ankle and unbalanced the lion.

While Hackenschmidt was trying to regain his equilibrium, Gotch struck the lion's injured leg with his right knee and the Russian crumpled in a heap upon the canvas. Instantly Gotch was in him, his powerful right hand firmly locked upon the under man's left toe. Heek screamed a couple of times, rolled over on his shoulders and gave up.

MUSICIAN DUPONT

AGAIN THE WINNER OF THE PARKER CUP

Musician Dupont of the rifle team of Company C of the Sixth regiment distinguished himself Saturday when he again won the Parker cup with a score of 65. The shoot was held at the Druett rifle range, and teams composed of members of Companies C and K competed. The Company K team won by the narrow margin of five points. Company K team did excellent work at the 200 yards range but at the 500 and 600 yards ranges they fell by the wayside.

ANNUAL OUTING

OF SPANISH WAR VETERANS AT MARTIN LUTHERS

Over 200 members of the Spanish War Veterans' association and ladies enjoyed an outing at the Martin Luther camp in Tynesboro, yesterday, leaving Lowell at 9:30 on the Governor Allen, returning at 8 o'clock. A sumptuous repast was served and the day was taken up with baseball, races, athletic stunts and a tug of war for ladies.

RHEUMATISM IS CURABLE

Nature Has Provided a Way of Driving the Poison from the Blood Which Is the Only Cure.

In attacks of acute rheumatism there is a rapid thinning of the blood, the number of red corpuscles are reduced. These red corpuscles carry oxygen which is the weapon with which nature fights poisons in the blood.

Without proper treatment the rheumatic poisons in the blood increase and the body's means of defence is weakened. A remedy that will increase the number of red corpuscles under these conditions will cure rheumatism.

The direct action of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People is to increase the red corpuscles in the blood, making it rich and red. Any doctor can prove this. It is merely a matter of microscopic count. And any sufferer can tell that as the blood becomes richer the rheumatic pains disappear. Mr. Richard Kelly, a night watchman, of No. 124 Auburn Place, Rockford, Ill., says:

"I suffered from rheumatism for a number of years and was so bad off at times that I had to take to bed. The trouble followed an attack of typhoid fever, when I was a young man, which left me in bad shape. The rheumatism settled in my right shoulder and arm. I also had a lame back. I suffered a great deal and often when ploughing in the field would have to stop and lie down as the pains were so intense and came on so suddenly. I also had a very bad cough for years and my friends said it was consumption."

"I took the doctor's medicine for a while, but as it wasn't helping me I gave it up. I read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and, gave them a trial. After taking a few boxes I could see they were helping me and I took them until cured. I had not been much of a believer in doctors and medicines but Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People certainly cured me of both the rheumatism and my cough."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are on sale at all druggists, or they will be sent to any address by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price $2.50, ten boxes $20.00. Medication Company, Schenectady, N.Y. A valuable booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," will be sent free upon request.

RUMORS OF IMPENDING WAR BETWEEN FRANCE AND GERMANY INTENSIFIED

BERLIN, Sept. 5.—Now that M. Jules Cambon, the French ambassador here, and Herr von Kiderlen-Waechter, the German foreign minister, have resumed their "conversations" regarding the Moroccan dispute, rumors of another Franco-Prussian war have intensified the excitement not only in the French and German capitals, but throughout Europe. The course the negotiations will pursue cannot be forecast with accuracy, but it is believed that if France is disposed to accept Germany's minimum demand of certain portions of the Congo as compensation—and there is some reason to believe she is—the other questions affecting Morocco may be arranged satisfactorily. Germany is anxious to conclude the negotiations before Oct. 16, the date fixed for the meeting of the reichstag.

UNION PICNIC

HELD BY MEMBERS OF THE UNITED WORKMEN

The members of Lowell lodge, No. 22, of this city, and Pacific lodge, No. 6, of Lawrence, Ancient Order of United Workmen, held a union picnic at Belle Grove Saturday afternoon. There were about 200 persons present and the afternoon was spent in an enjoyable manner. The majority of the members were accompanied by their families.

The feature of the outing was the list of sports which was run off shortly after the people arrived at the grounds. The first and principal event was a red hot baseball game between Lowell and Pacific lodges, the Lawrence team winning by a score of 5 to 4. Inasmuch as the time was limited the teams played but five innings.

The teams were composed of the following players:
Lowell lodge—Bradstreet c, Cotter p, Galbraith 1b, Connelly 2b, Lally ss, Kilmatt 3b, Cune rf, Kerr lf, Hannigan cf.
Pacific lodge—Pierce c, Maloney p, Stoughton 1b, Gaudner 2b, Flagg ss, Wigen 3b, Wittenbury rf, Downey of, Hart lf.

There were two special prizes for the ball game, for the best hitters, Maloney and Stoughton being the winners.

The regular track events were then run off. Following is the result of the contests:
100-yards dash, Hannigan and Flory, gauge.

ITALIAN CATHOLICS

HAD SERVICES AT ST. PETER'S YESTERDAY

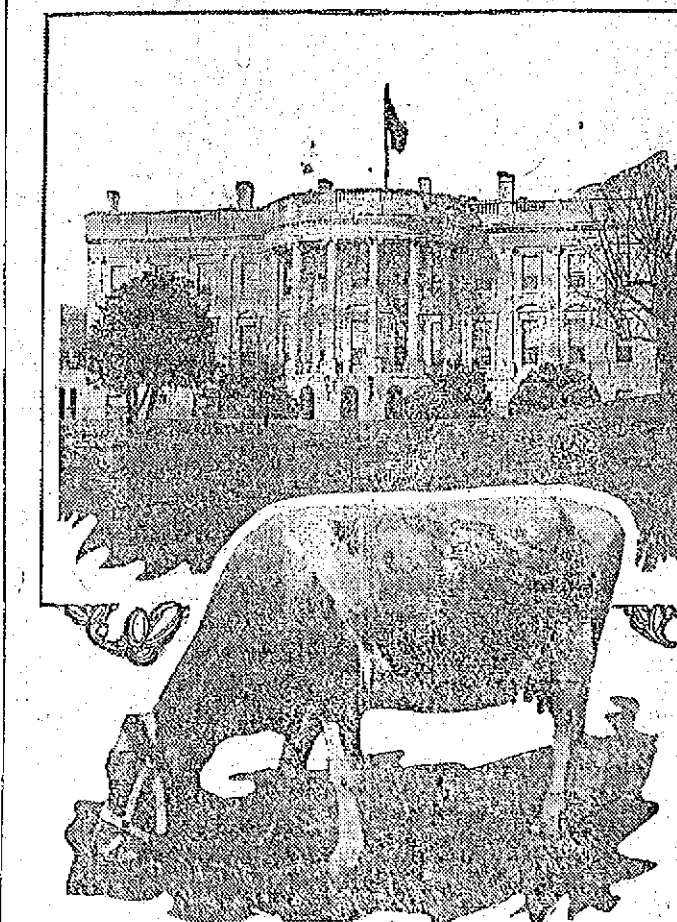

Solemn high mass was sung at St. Peter's church at 10 o'clock yesterday morning for the Italian Catholics of Lowell of whom there are over 100 in this city. The celebrant was the Rev. Fr. Francis of the Franciscan order of Boston assisted by the Rev. John F. Burns, St. Peter's church, deacon and the Rev. John T. O'Brien of St. Peter's sub-deacon. The Rev. Daniel J. Keeler also of St. Peter's church was master of ceremonies. After the mass Fr. Francis preached an eloquent sermon in Italian, and a great many received communion. The Italians of the Catholic faith are strong in their determination to build a church and steps were taken yesterday along that line, but nothing definite was settled. When the Rev. Fr. Lewis, O. M. I., was stationed at St. Jean Baptiste church, the Italians had services at that church, the Rev. Fr. Lewis preaching to them in their own language.

DR. ROLAND FALKNER

which have the highest standards in statistical work and to study the methods employed in census operations. Questioned before his departure concerning this duty, Dr. Falkner said that the principal achievements of recent years in census taking in the United States were in the tabulation of the material when the introduction of machinery had completely revolutionized processes and greatly increased the output. In the collection of the original material little progress has been made. In some parts of Europe methods are in vogue which, he stated, insure a much prompter and probably a more accurate return of the original material from the enumerators. This aspect of census taking will receive special attention.

MARTIN SHERIDAN

MARTIN SHERIDAN NOW HARD IN TRAINING FOR COMING CHAMPIONSHIPS

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—For the first time in more than a year Martin Sheridan, who is rated as the greatest athlete in the world, is now down to real hard training for the coming meets. Sheridan has taken up his abode at Celtic park and is working faithfully to get rid of some of the extra weight that he has accumulated during the past twelve months. Sheridan is doing most of his work on the track and still has the old jump at the start that used to bring him victory in the 100 yard race in the all round series. Martin works every night with Mel Sheppard. The pair run fifty yard dashes and always finish within a yard of each other. The discus thrower gets the jump on Peerless Mel, but Sheppard comes with a rush at the finish and generally wins Martin right at the tape. Sheridan figures that if he can shed about forty pounds he will be able to fling the Greek saucer farther than it has ever been hurled by going 100 feet.

The back row is standing, and the front row is kneeling. They are wearing uniforms with "PENNA" visible on the front. A pennant flag is visible in the background on the right.

The Shawlights of Lowell defeated the Independents of North Billerica yesterday in a game of thirteen innings a score of 9 to 8. The pitching of Hur and base running of McCarthy were the features.

THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

The sworn daily average circulation of The Lowell Sun for the year 1910 was

15,976

Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martin H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Pilotte, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 2, 1911. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

The city of Lawrence has our sympathy in the abject position it occupies in the eyes of the commonwealth. When a city's credit is so low that the banks do not want to advance it a loan the situation is indeed serious.

Canada is now getting a large percentage of her immigrants from the United States. The immigration department at Ottawa gives out figures which would indicate something in the nature of an American invasion. The total immigration from this country for July was 11,012, but it is safe to say that a large proportion of these were tourists who went there for a vacation. The immigration for the first four months of the year was 54,814, which shows a strong tendency northward that cannot be explained on the vacation theory.

AN EXPENSIVE ACCIDENT

The Lehigh Valley Railroad company on whose line the recent wreck at Manchester, N. Y., occurred will have to pay out nearly $1,000,000 in damages to the injured and the relatives of those who were killed. That will doubtless be a lesson to other companies in the necessity of preventing accidents. If in addition to this the company should be prosecuted for criminal negligence the companies of the country would thereafter stand in utter awe of such accidents.

OPPOSITION TO TAFT

That President Taft is not without opposition in his own party is shown by the attitude of the insurgents. Medill McCormick, one of the owners of the Chicago Tribune, is an influential factor in the republican party. He is with the La Follette progressives and is sternly opposed to the re-nomination of Taft. Speaking of the subject he recently said:

"It is plain from the president's speech last Saturday that he has learned nothing from the election of last November. First nominated by Roosevelt, then dominated by Aldrich, he now would be the censor of republicanism. He would proscribe every one who differs with him."

La Follette, McCormick and a great many other prominent leaders will not be proscribed. Taft will find himself dependent almost entirely upon the standpatters who will never be able to elect him.

OILING STREETS

On Wednesday evening a hearing will be held at city hall on the proposition to oil certain streets. It is time that the street department made an intelligent experiment in this matter of oiling streets. Many cities less important than Lowell have been oiling streets quite extensively. The only thing we have done in this line was the oiling of the boulevard for the auto races. The cities of Worcester and Springfield have found the oiling of streets so beneficial that they expend a considerable amount for that purpose every year. The city of Haverhill has also begun to oil some of its streets, and the experiment meets general approval as it not only lays the dust but preserves the surface from disintegration. There are certain kinds of oil better adapted for some streets than others and again there are certain streets on which any kind of oil would be wasted. The oiling of streets is a process in which expert skill is required just as in smooth paving, sewer building or anything else.

LABOR DAY OBSERVANCE

The Labor Day parade and the exercises that followed constituted a highly creditable demonstration of the power, the dignity and the rights of labor. It is true that the parade might have been larger, but as it was it was thoroughly representative of organized labor in the various crafts, particularly the building trades. The day was thoroughly enjoyed, and it is to be presumed that it will at least result in increased prestige and membership for the various unions represented. Labor Day should be used to promote the welfare of labor without any attempt to intensify a feeling of antagonism for the men or the companies who use their capital in a legitimate manner. The labor men who emphasize the necessity of cooperation between capital and labor are safer leaders than those who would set these inseparable industrial elements at each others' throats.

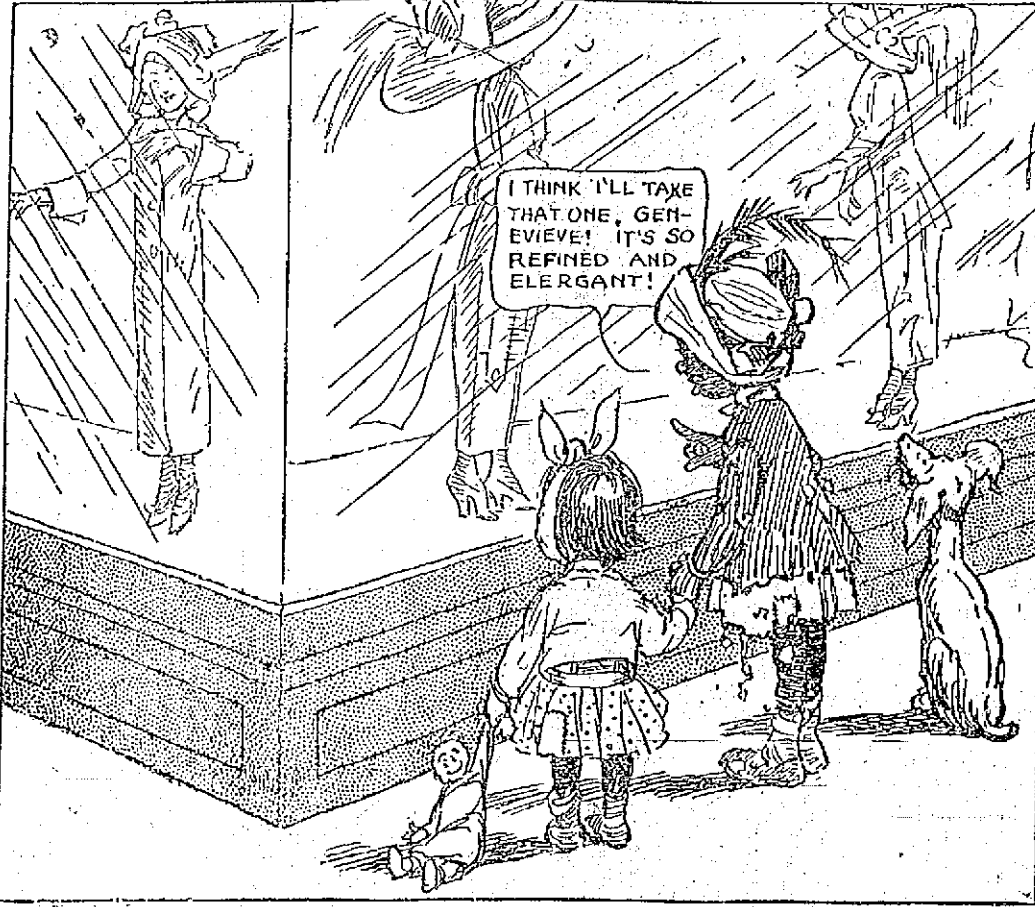

The southern members of the American Bar association are raising a howl because William H. Lewis, the negro assistant attorney general of the United States has been elected to membership. The southerners in opposing the admission of Mr. Lewis show their prejudice, and in so doing they are no credit to the Bar association or to their profession.

JUVENILE ROWDYISM

A day or two ago this newspaper printed an account of the assault in this city by two boys upon a younger boy, whom the assailants suspected of having told on them with respect to a petty theft. The victim is alleged to have been made a cripple for life. A few days previous to that, the story was published of a small boy who was carried by a gang of older boys into a swamp and pushed into the mud, where he would have died had not one of his playmates made a successful search for him. In this case, the motive appears to have been sheer ferocity, without even the excuse of revenge.—New Bedford Standard.

It is getting to be the custom in other cities than New Bedford, not excepting our own, for juvenile rowdies to beat and otherwise impose upon their juniors. They may not often resort to such extremes as in the two cases mentioned above, but they do deliberately waylay youngsters, sometimes taking whatever money they may have and at others beating them unmercifully. There are boys who constitute themselves neighborhood bullies and head gangs for the purpose of abusing their juniors and committing petty depredations, the destruction of property and various acts of vandalism. Their method of starting a quarrel with children younger than themselves is to call names or throw something at the children whom they want to abuse. Then on the slightest show of resistance they fall upon the little ones and abuse them in a manner that should receive the attention of the police, but the gangs have no trouble in avoiding the "cop" who, as a rule, pays little attention to their doings.

Who can help pitying the deaf and dumb man who becomes a baseball "fan" and tries to express his enthusiasm at the ball game!

A Chicago woman has "inaugurated" the pleasant custom of sending jubilation cards to all her friends on the anniversary of her divorce.

It is no use for a man at a party to try to look as if he had a private conservatory at home, after he has just expressed his admiration of some imitation patins.

A young man is pretty sure to get ahead in life, if he is sufficiently good-looking, when he realizes fully that it is just as easy to love a rich girl as it is to love a poor one.

A man begins to have that humble feeling when he finds out for the first time that, as regards some one thing, at least, his eighteen-year-old boy knows more than he does.

Since Americans are a nation of dyspeptics, the quickest road to fortune is obviously to get up a new kind of pepsin pills.

It always gives a shock to the irreligious to see the deacon in a department store buying a dozen whiskey glasses.

Somewhat, we always look with distrust at the young surgeon who tells us that last week he was called out to Grand Rapids to operate in an appendicitis case.

The Old Bachelor is worrying. An-draw Carnegie's hero fund, he says, is inadequate. Eight thousand people are married in this country every year.

Those people in the flat above, I know, are queer.

They don't restrain at all their half-grown boys.

They have a phonograph it's torture just to hear.

In short, they make a dreadful lot of noise.

They keep the racket up quite frequently till one.

Something that no flat dweller ought to do.

I know all that, but tell me, now you have begun.

What do the people underneath you think of you?

The people in the flat above should be ashamed.

It's plain they're very inconsiderate.

And there's no reason why you should be blamed.

For fussing, when they keep it up so late.

Those are the things, you know, that fret you so.

The things the folks who live above you do.

And, frankly, I should really like to know.

What do the people underneath you think of you?

It certainly seems unjust that authors should have to wait till publication for their pay, when they have to pay spot cash for postage stamps.

When a man is asked in company what was the happiest day of his life, his wife always expects him to answer: "My wedding day, of course."

Reading that a new three-quarter portrait of the president is on exhibition in New York, you naturally assume that it is the upper three-quarters of the president.

Question of etiquette: When a young man calls on a young lady and she takes a seat on the end of a sofa, ought he to take his seat on a chair?

DEATHS

JILLSON—Mrs. Jennette Jillson died Sunday at her home, 608 Wilder street, aged 84 years, 6 months and 12 days. She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Mary Moffit of this city and Mrs. Warren D. Willson of Los Angeles, Cal.

TRAINOR—Miss Margaret Trainor died Sunday at the Lowell General Hospital, aged 27 years. She was the daughter of Francis and Mary Trainor and leaves besides her parents, two sisters, Mary Agnes Trainor and Mrs. Pearl Merrill, six brothers, James, John, William, Walter, Vincent and Dominick Trainor. The body was removed to her home at 16 Kinsman street by Undertaker John J. O'Connell.

WING—Mrs. Maria J. Wing, widow of James A. Wing, died Saturday in Caramo, Me., aged 64 years. She was well known in Lowell, living at 475 Merrimack street in this city for many years. She leaves three daughters, Mrs. James Weld and Miss Ada and Miss Cora Wing of St. Paul. The body will be brought to this city for burial by Undertaker Weinbeck.

BAILEY—Mr. John B. Bailey, a well known resident of Andover, died at his residence Saturday night, aged 73 years. He is survived by one son, Frank Bailey, a grandson, Chandler Bailey of Andover and one sister, Mrs. T. E. Ferrin of Attleboro, Mass.

SLEIN—Dominick Slein, a well known and respected resident of this city and a devout member of St. Columba's church, died Saturday afternoon at his home, 14 Adams avenue, Pawtucketville. He leaves besides his wife Nora, one son, Owen P.; four daughters, Misses Nora A., Minnie C., Helen F. and Margaret T. Slein, also four brothers, Bartholomew, John and Owen of Ireland and James and Mary Ann, of New York, and Ellen of Ireland.

SWAGER—The many friends of Mrs. Louise M. Swager, wife of Leonard J. Swager, will be pained to learn of her death, which occurred Sunday morning at her home, 1 Waldo street. She is survived by her husband, Leonard J. Swager, four daughters, Mrs. Fred Palmerman of Townsend, Mass.; Mrs. Frank Vaughn, Mrs. William J. Higgins and Miss Rose Swager; and one son, Leonard H. Swager. She was a constant member of the Sacred Heart church, a member of the Holy Rosary society and a respected resident of this city for over 40 years.

TIBBETTS—Mrs. Kathryn Tibbetts died Saturday at her home, 29 Tyler street, aged 18 years. She leaves a husband, Philip H. Tibbetts, two brothers, William and John Reagan, two sisters, Elizabeth and Mary Reagan, and a father, Daniel Reagan.

CHIEF HOSMER SUED

Wm. J. Green Brings an Action of Tort

William J. Green, through his attorney, Jackson Palmer, has entered suit against Chief Edward S. Hosmer, in an action of tort, in the sum of $4000. When seen by a reporter of The Sun Chief Hosmer said: "What's he bringing a suit for; that's the first I've heard of it. I am sure I don't know what it's about."

The suit is entered at the local registry.

HIS HIP FRACTURED

James C. Bennett, hardware dealer at 269 Dutton street, slipped and fell while in the store shortly before noon today and sustained a fracture of the hip. The ambulance was summoned and Mr. Bennett was removed to his home, 173 Branch street.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that 98 per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce or his able staff, have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases. Every sick woman may consult us by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear or without fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Is in Training for the Swim to Boston Light

Henry D. Sullivan, the well known Centralville boy, who has made several swims from the Tyngham bridge to the Pawtucket falls and who recently established a record when he swam from the Centralville bridge to the falls in Lawrence, made his first long distance swim in salt water Sunday when he went from Revere beach to Nahant in two hours, six

A Wonderful Coal Tar Product That Will Destroy All Kinds of Germ Life and Dirt

Carbonol is a wonderful derivative of coal tar. It has a remarkable number of uses. Speaking broadly it is carbolic acid without the peril. Carbonol is quite harmless except to germ life and insects. Used against any small life from insects to disease germs, it is extremely deadly and over the vapor of it is wonderfully effective.

FOR DISINFECTING

Sprinkled about the sick room, it will disinfect walls and hangings, bedding, etc., and disinfect the air also. It will make sick room utensils antiseptic and sterile. Sprayed about the henhouse it will not only kill lice and disease germs on the walls and floors, but will also by its vapor kill lice on the hens themselves. In the cow barn it will prevent the spread of foot and mouth disease, foot rot, scabs, etc. Sheep can be dipped in a solution of it to destroy ticks and vermin in the wool. In short, wherever there are germs to be killed or vermin to be warded off, Carbonol is very useful. An entire house can be disinfected and deodorized with Carbonol when a little of it is added to the water that is used in cleaning. A generous sample of this remarkable preparation mailed free on request. Address the Barrett Manufacturing Company, 297 Franklin street, Boston, Mass.

minutes and 57 seconds, thereby breaking the record held by Sam Richards who recently performed the feat in two hours and 15 minutes. He entered the water at Revere at 10:31 a. m. and reached Nahant at 12:37:53.

Five Boston swimmers accompanied Sullivan in the water but they were unable to keep up the fast pace set by the Lowell boy and one by one they dropped out of the contest and were pulled into boats which were following the swimmers.

The water was rather cold and very choppy, but despite the fact that it was Sullivan's first long swim in the salt water he felt none the worse after the grueling test and when he arrived in Lowell in the evening he was in the pink of condition. The only complaint he had to make was that he had to go out of the regular course from the beach to Nahant owing to the number of boats that were in the water and he feels that but for this handicap he would have negotiated the distance in much less than two hours.

Sullivan was accompanied in a boat by his father, Thomas D. Sullivan; his brother, Harold B. Sullivan; and John Conlon of this city, also George Lane of Dorchester, Capt. N. L. Smith of Winthrop, Mr. Foss of Boston and George Jeffrey of Boston; the out of town men acting as timers for the swimmers.

Sunday's stunt was the first of a series of swims that Sullivan is to make in the salt water in order to get

To Succeed You Must SLEEP!

The hardest work in a man's life comes when he is struggling to get a foothold. Young men often over-estimate their strength in the intense absorption required by business affairs. Many, the great showman, attributed his success in dealing with vast schemes and infinite detail, to his ability to forget it all in refreshing sleep.

Any young man who knows that he is discounting his chances of success through loss of sleep should be wary of any remedy that contains habit inducing drugs.

Facts About Motherhood

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman now-a-days has medical treatment at the time of child-birth, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when the strain is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

It isn't as though the experience came upon them unawares. They have ample time in which to prepare, but they, for the most part, trust to chance and pay the penalty.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy, and strong.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases.

SOME GOOD ADVICE

Don't Have Anything to Do With Wet "Blankets"

If you cannot succeed yourself don't be a wet blanket on the efforts of others.

Any number of women go through life without accomplishing anything and yet with continually raised eyebrows at the efforts of others. One would think it was the height of the ridiculous to attempt anything in this world.

Such people never attempt anything hard; they are too afraid of failure, and, alas, that it should be so, this mental laziness brings its own punishment. They become soft and inefficient through continually avoiding effort.

What more natural, then, realizing their own limitations, than to seek by ridicule to prevent others from doing what they cannot themselves?

And so you hear them exclaim: "Why do you attempt to cut out that pattern? Why not leave it to the dressmaker? Instead of trying yourself out!"

Or, "You cannot possibly put up that awning right; why don't you give it up?"

Then there is the continual reference to age by the "wet blanket." "Of course you could do such and such a thing if you were younger," she will say. Or, "You could learn such and such a thing, but at your time of life it will take you too long," etc.

There is just one way to deal with a "wet blanket" besides the rather brutal one of telling her to hold her tongue, and that consists in leaving her alone and getting away from her as much as possible.

You may be ever so strong minded, but the "wet blanket" will get on your nerves, and in spite of yourself her eternal doubt will infect you, too, and you will catch yourself in a questioning mental attitude, where you are not sure of your own success, which means, as a rule, failure.

confidences in your own self instead of timidity.

The world is full of women who are afraid to make any decisive record. Don't add yourself to the number of vacillating failures.

WATERS

Half a pound of flour, a pint of new milk, a quarter of a pound of fine sugar and a quarter of a pound of butter. Boil the milk, put one half to the sugar and one half to the butter, strain off the sugar and mix all together very smoothly.

It is not generally known that if a teaspoonful of vinegar is added to a quart of milk when mixing cakes that the cakes will not only be much lighter, but only one egg is needed instead of two.

TOMATO AND APPLE SALAD

Remove the skins from some firm tomatoes and cut them into slices; then cut an equal quantity of russet apples (free from peel) into slices, which should be of about the same size as the tomato slices. Arrange the fruit alternately on a suitable dish, dress them with mayonnaise sauce and garnish at the edge with shelled walnuts divided into small pieces and scatter a little finely chopped chervil and tarragon over all.

NOT ONE ARREST

Was Made in Lowell Over Labor Day

Twenty-seven drunks got in over the holiday of whom 15 got out this morning without the formality of making a bow to Judge Hadley.

Of the 27 every one was arrested between Saturday and Monday and not a single arrest being made on Labor's great holiday.

John J. Gibbons, a second offender, asked a chance to get back to the city of Waltham. He got it, together with a suspended sentence of two months in jail.

Frank O'Brien, a parole man from Bridgewater, went back.

Patrick Bradley, sucked a four months' sentence through the grace of the probation officer.

Thomas D. Bodkin goes to the state farm at Bridgewater.

Philip S. Riley was held until Wednesday for sentence on a charge of drunkenness.

William Monahan was fussy and when given a sentence of four months in jail asked to be sent to the state farm. He didn't get his wish.

Harry Peller was an unlucky fellow because he attempted to pull off a bicycle race with Meyer Becosky, on the paths of the South commons. It cost them $5 each.

George Vincent charged with drunkenness and exposure of person was continued until tomorrow.

William H. Caron and some others were playing "Come Seven," on the sidewalk Sunday when Officer Breault broke up the game, catching Caron. The latter pleaded guilty and coughed up eight beans to the county kiddy.

THE IDEALS OF LABOR

Address on South Common by
Rev. H. A. Atkinson

Labor Sunday was observed on the South common Sunday afternoon when the Federation of Churches and Trades and Labor council co-operated in services which were greatly enjoyed by hundreds of people. Rev. H. A. Atkinson of the First Congregational church presided and the principal speaker was Rev. Henry A. Atkinson, the Congregational Brotherhood secretary of labor and social service. Mr. John J. Mahoney, president of the Trades and Labor council, also addressed the gathering.

The meeting was opened with the singing of "Nearer, My God, to Thee" with Mr. Thomas Wardell directing. The Scriptural lesson was read by Rev. N. T. Whitaker, D. D. and prayer was offered by Rev. S. W. Cummings. Rev. Mr. Whitaker then introduced President Mahoney of the Trades and Labor council who said that the meeting was significant inasmuch as the labor men and the churches of the city had come together for the first time, to unite in what will hereafter be known as Labor Sunday. It indicates, he said, that labor is not opposed to the church; nor the church to labor—but that both have come to realize that neither can get along without the other.

A letter was read from Rev. J. E. Gregg, president of the Federation of Churches, expressing his regret at not being present and then Rev. Mr. Whitaker spoke of his own former standing as a trades-union man, he having held a union card before he entered the ministry.

Rev. Mr. Atkinson's Address

Rev. Henry A. Atkinson was then introduced as the principal speaker. He said he knew a great deal about the church and something about trade unionism and continuing said: "The church has made some very serious mistakes. I know, too, that trades unionists have made some very serious mistakes. But I believe there is a great deal of good in the church, in spite of all its mistakes, in spite of the fact that it has emphasized things that ought not to have been emphasized, and has left off the emphasis where it ought to be put. I believe there is a great deal of good in trades unionism. I believe that if Jesus of Nazareth were living in our city today, and working at the carpenter's trade, he would be a member and regular attendant of the Christian church, and a member of the carpenter's union. It seems to me that in the main plan of the work of the church and the work of the union, we have one ideal. Everything that Jesus taught had to do with the welfare of human beings, the condition of man, all about him.

"I want to speak of three principles, on which the church people and the labor men can get together. First, all men have the right to labor. That is an easy proposition.

The second proposition is that labor has the right to demand that the labor be performed under certain conditions. If he gives his time in a factory, he should be protected from danger during the hours of his toil. Men assume a certain amount of risk, but I think the time is coming when workshops will be made just as safe as possible; and if a man is hurt, he ought not to suffer all the loss. The price of industry ought to pay for the blood of labor. Any one of us would demand that for ourselves; let us demand it for all, in the name of brotherhood and justice. Some of our factories are not clean. There will be certain diseases that follow a trade, but by putting forth a little humanitarian effort it is possible to eliminate nearly all of those diseases. We have a right to demand that, and labor is clearly in its right when it says that if it is going to give itself for the great movement of industry in our time, it shall be protected from unnecessary disease as well as from danger.

"The third demand which the laborer is right in making, is that when he sells his labor he does not sell his right to representation. I believe thoroughly in the principle of the party contract, and I believe in the right of representation.

"In regard to the length of the day: In Bethlehem, Pa., the cooperation of churches with the labor movement has brought about an investigation and conditions are gradually changing for the better.

"The third proposition on which the church people and the labor men can come together, is the right of the laborer to demand adequate compensation for labor rendered. There never was a time in the history of the world when we were as rich as we are today; never a time when money was increasing as fast as it is today. With all of this business, it is a shame that there are men and women without the necessities of life. If industries and frugal people have to be helped, there is something wrong; and the churches are not doing their business, unless they speak out against such conditions.

"What makes child labor the menace that it is today? It is low wages, primarily. A better wage for the head of the family would do away with it quicker than anything else. The same is true of the social vice of better wages paid to women and girls. It will do more than all the rescue work we are attempting.

"I do not care what the job is, the man that works ought to get enough out of labor so that he can save a little, and have pictures and books. If we make life a treadmill, with nothing but grinding toil, I do not see anything in life.

"After these demands have all been met there is one thing that the church and the labor men have in common. Every movement of our time that counts for anything, recognizes Jesus of Nazareth as the ideal. He reached his highest point in the annunciation of the golden rule. We must come together as brothers, because the golden rule is the standard by which we are all to be judged. The employer must remember that the men working for him are his brothers. One is not a fond system if it is cooperative. On the other hand, the men who are working in the factories and shops must remember that the men for whom they were working are their brothers, their fellow men; and whatsoever they would have their employer do for them, they must do for him.

"When love takes the place of hatred, when love takes the place of cooperation is the spirit of our time. I believe we are going to enter into that golden age for which the labor unions are toiling, and which the best in all our churches are earnestly seeking. Getting together as we have done today, means much for the great civilization of our country."

The meeting was closed with the singing of "America," and the benediction by Rev. George F. Kemzort.

BIG AIRSHIP RACE

Ovington and Milling Winners of the Great Cross Country Event

BOSTON, Sept. 5.—Earle T. Ovington the West Newton aviator, and Lieut. T. D. Milling carved their names deep into the honor shield of American aviation yesterday, when they piloted their aeroplanes over 150 miles of New England's rugged country while competing in the tri-state cross-country flight of the Harvard-Boston aero meet for prizes totalling $17,500.

To Arthur B. Stone, the nervy New York flier, and to Harry N. Atwood, the local man, whose flight from St. Louis to New York last month was the talk of the country, is honor due for their attempts to fly about the circuit, although both were compelled to descend in Medford, within a half-mile of each other, on account of motor difficulties.

And America may well celebrate yesterday as the greatest day in American aviation, for two crack airmen of England, each noted for cross-country flying of the nerviest type, refused to go over the course, because of its dangers, and left the field to the Americans, whose pluck and daring carried them through to the finish, unscathed and honored above all the daring aviators who have supported the prestige of this, the birthplace of heavier-than-air flight.

A conservative estimate places the number of spectators who witnessed the magnificent flights of the West Newton man who scoffs at superstition and boldly declares his confidence in the good luck of the supposedly fatal number 13, and the army of those who demonstrated to his superiors at Washington the practicality of the aeroplane as an adjunct to the military, at 2,000,000.

Multitudes See Racers

All along the line New Englanders were gathered by thousands. The roofs of Boston were black, Nashua's fairgrounds were crowded to capacity. Worcester could hardly afford a landing place for the aviators when they dashed over the New England fair, while Providence had so many Rhode Islanders gathered at Narragansett Park that it was impossible to clear a lane through which the fliers could fly from the field.

And at the Harvard Aviation Field in Squantum, at least 20,000 people, arose to their feet and screamed a greeting to the aviators as they winged their way across the skies, emperied and bursting with the crimson fire of the setting sun, and then crowded about the dashing birdmen as they were lifted from their aeroplanes and carried about the field by their fellow aviators and admirers.

For Ovington it was a victory for American nerve, a domination of cool-headedness and presence of mind over the hidden dangers of the treacherous air for Milling it was, also, a triumph for American build-up, and for the aeronautical corps of the army.

Enters Flight From Pacific

Ovington's victory was made possible, aside from his own confidence and capable control of his aeroplane, by the genius of the French builder who designed the Blériot monoplane in which he made the flight and by the engineering skill of the Frenchman who designed the 70-horsepower rotary motor that purred without a skip throughout the three-hour trip. So thorough was the test of both monoplane and motor that Ovington had hardly alighted from the shoulders of those who bore him about the field in triumph than he announced his entry in the flight from the Pacific coast to New York, declaring his readiness to start within a fortnight.

But Milling's victory was entirely American, the biplane he drove being a Massachusetts product and the engine an Ohio invention and manufactured in that state.

The figures of the flights do not half express the wonderful performance of these American heroes of the air. To say that Ovington covered the course 24.6m, 22.1-5, or at a rate of about 44 miles an hour, or that Milling's time with his extra miles covered when he lost his way was 52.22m, 37.2 is to reduce to mathematical sight that are epochal in their influence on aviation.

Ovington $10,000; Milling $5000

Nor do the prizes compensate to any material degree the perils of the flight. The monoplane prizes were to be $25,000 and a first of $7500, a second of $1500 and a third of $1000. To Ovington, the only man in that division to complete the course, Charles H. Taylor, the donor of this flight series of prizes, awarded the entire sum of $10,000 while to Milling was awarded the $5000 prize offered by a Providence newspaper and the committee in charge of the meet.

GAME NOT FINISHED

Boston Cricketers Lead the Buntings

Boston and Bunting did not finish the full game yesterday, but the visitors won, as the game reverts to the first inning totals. Boston scored 50, to 35 for Bunting. Although the bowling of the Boston men was excellent in both innings, it was 5.15 p. m. when Bunting completed its second inning, and Boston did not bat again.

Dewhurst, of the Boston team, did the hat trick in the first inning, and almost repeated it in the second. In the first inning Mitchell of Boston took 1 for 16, Nevitt 5 for 18, and Dewhurst 4 for 2, and in the second Nevitt took 2 for 9 and Dewhurst 7 for 12. The score:

MOTOR BOAT RACES

Were Held on the Merrimack River

The motor boat races on the Merrimack river yesterday were all to the good. The weather was ideal; there was a good stiff breeze and for a new attraction it created great interest. Dr. Walter Knapp was the real promoter, and he worked hard to make the affair the success that it was. The races were run off at the Pawtucket boat house.

The course, as arranged by the officials, was to describe two laps around two buoys, one stationed at the Vesper Country club, while the other was anchored at the Pawtucket boat house, making a grand total of 14 miles. Two races were run off around the 14 mile course, one the handicap endurance race, while the other was a sprint.

In the first event Littlefield was pronounced winner, while in the latter Brooks' boat proved superior, covering the 14 miles in 1 hour, 8 minutes, and 54 4-5 seconds. Little was a close second, but it was evident from the start that the Brooks boat was the speedier of the two.

The following proved the winners over the others of the 39 that entered: Carey 2d, Bradford 3d, Walters 4th, Parker 5th, Rice 6th, Luce 7th, Dorrell 8th, Chrysler 9th, the consolation prize going to a boat driven by Mr. V. Adams.

The officials in charge of proceedings were: General manager, Charles Gould; starter and timer, Paul Kable; judges, Dr. Fred Snyder, Fred Sturtevant, Charles Cauldwell and Ted Riley. Mr. Riley also was in charge of the donation of prizes.

GIRL WAS KILLED

She Was Struck by a Trolley Car

BOSTON, Sept. 5.—Six-year-old Esther L. Nason was fatally crushed under the fender of a trolley car at Union Park and Washington streets yesterday afternoon while her mother looked on from the street, unable to help, and her father and her two-year-old brother, Thomas, were watching her from a window of their home at 36 Union Park street.

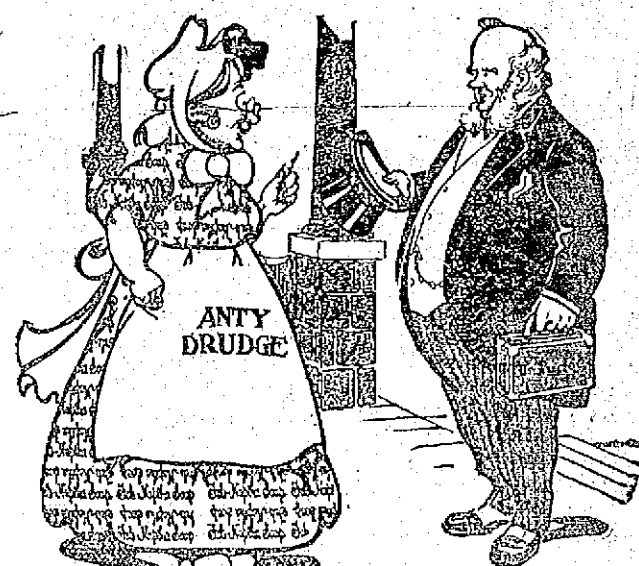

Bystanders raised the car to release the little girl, who died at the City hospital shortly after 7 o'clock, meaning the fact that she would not be able to go to school on the opening day, although all her new clothes were bought.

The girl and her mother had gone to a fruit store near their home. While Mrs. Nason was making some purchases she sent Esther across the street to buy a newspaper. Esther returned with a New York paper and the mother, not knowing no Boston papers were published yesterday, sent her back to change it.

As she ran across the street a north-bound trolley car, in charge of Motorman Isaac Robinson, struck her and she fell on top of the fender. Before the car was stopped she rolled under the fender and was wedged between the lifeguard and the pavement.

The car was quickly emptied, while a great crowd of excited people gathered. There was no lifting appliance handy, but a score of men raised the car from the stricken form.

The motorman was not held by the police, as Charles E. Nason, the girl's father who saw the accident, said Robinson was not to blame for striking her although he thought the car might have been stopped much sooner than it was.

Anty Drudge Cures a Sick Headache.

Dr. Fudge—"Does Mrs. Junebride live here?"

Anty Drudge—"No—next door. I found her out in the back kitchen crying over her wash. The poor dear isn't used to such hard work, and she has a sick headache from it. I took the wash from her and quickly finished it with Fels-Naptha. She won't need you again on that score."

Dr. Fudge—"Well, really, Anty Drudge, washday is responsible for more ills than most people imagine. I am glad you have taken Mrs. Junebride under your wing. Fels-Naptha is the ounce of prevention that is worth my pound of cure."

Delicate summer curtains, draperies, tapestries, laces, women's fine raiment—things that would be ruined by washing in the old-fashioned way—can be cleaned at home with Fels-Naptha as well as an expert cleaner could do it.

Fels-Naptha contains no injurious chemicals; nothing that could harm the most delicate fabric. Sets colors instead of making them run as most soaps do.

With Fels-Naptha, use only cold or lukewarm water—never hot. That saves the fabric. Hot water would soften it and cause fraying.

Fels-Naptha dissolves the dirt; you don't have to rub it loose as with ordinary soap.

More than a million women do their washing with Fels-Naptha. They have found out that Fels-Naptha is the best and easiest way.

Follow directions on the red and green wrapper.

IMPOSING PARADE

A VERY SAD CASE

Two Little Children Died of Poisoning

Agnes Josephine Casey, aged three years and six months, and her sister, Margaret, aged eight years and eight months, children of Henry and Elizabeth Casey of 14 Ina street, died within a few hours of each other Saturday night at the home of their parents, death being due to accidental poisoning.

The manner in which they were effected is not known. The first symptoms appeared Tuesday when both children were taken suddenly ill and displayed all symptoms of ptomaine poisoning. A physician was summoned but after making an examination found that there was no chance for the little ones to live.

Medical Examiner J. V. Meigs was called and declared that death was due to accidental poisoning but could not determine exactly the cause.

The funeral of the two children took place from the home of their parents at two o'clock this afternoon and the interment was in the family lot in the Catholic cemetery.

FUNERAL NOTICE

JILLSON—Died Sept. 3rd, in this city, Mrs. Jennette B. Jillson, aged 64 years, 6 months and 12 days.

Funeral services will be held at 502 Wilder street, Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Friends are invited without further notice, burial will take place Friday at Wakefield, R. I. The funeral arrangements are in charge of Undertaker George W. Healey.

Prices were marked up in the final hour—covering of shorts a principal factor in the advance—Other features of the trading.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Stocks opened on a decidedly lower level when trading was resumed after the three day holiday. Opening transactions showed losses of a point or more in many of the railroad stocks, with a decline of 3 1/4 in Canadian Pacific. Recessions among the industrial issues were less severe. The decline was ascribed chiefly to the fall in prices in the foreign markets during the holiday.

First prices were the lowest. The market thereafter rose gradually but trading became progressively smaller as prices went up. Can. Pac rose 1 1/4 and Reading, St. Paul, Baltimore & Ohio, U. S. Steel and N. Y. Central 1 1/2. Some prominent railroads and industrials were bid up from 1 to 2 points.

The market lacked sufficient resiliency to throw off the effect of depression on the foreign exchanges which caused a break at the opening here and prices remained below Friday's close throughout the morning. Trading was on a comparatively small scale. The crisis in the strike proceeding on western railroads deterred traders from renewing bullish operations and in the absence of definite developments the bear party was equally slow to act. Following the partial recovery after the opening the tone became heavy again when selling orders were executed in Atchison, Reading and Lehigh Valley, which sold a point below Friday's close.

The tempo of speculation underwent a change for the better and there was a notable rise in prices all around U. S. Steel two points above the lowest of the forenoon and Reading, S. P., Atchison, Chesapeake & Ohio, Great Northern, U. S. Steel, Amal Copper and American Smelting 1 1/4. Many of these stocks ruling well above Friday's closing figures. An active demand prevailed for the Interborough Met and Amal Tobacco securities.

The market lapsed into dullness again in mid-afternoon and prices gave way a trifle.

The market closed strong. The most significant movement of the day occurred in the final hour when prices were marked up all around to the best figures of the session. The inquiry was urgent for all of their recognized favorites although the offerings were extremely light. Covering of shorts was the principal factor in the advance but more of a desire was exhibited to take on long stock when the improvement failed to bring out large offerings. U. S. Steel was lifted two points above last week's close. Amal Smelting and Amal Copper 1 point or more. Canadian Pacific reduced its early loss to a small fraction.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Prime mercantile paper 4 1/2 per cent. Sterling exchange steady at 48 1/2 for 60 day bills and at 48 1/2 for demand. Commercial bills 42 1/2. Bar silver 52 3/4. Mexican dollars 45. Government bonds firm. Railroad bonds firm.

Money on call steady. Ruling rate 2 1/4. Last loan 2 1/8, offered at 2 1/4. Time loans steady, 60 days 3 1/4 to 4, 90 days 3 1/4 to 3 1/2, six months 3 3/4 to 4, 7 1/2.

The Boston Market

BOSTON, Sept. 5.—After a generally firm opening the stock market was irregular in the first few hours today. With the exception of a drop of a point in United Fruit changes in either direction were fractional.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—The American mission at Wuhu has received a report that 100,000 persons have been drowned by the floods caused by the water flowing over the banks of the Yang-Tse-Kiang river.

The floods are the worst that have been experienced in many years. The province of Anhwei is submerged to a greater depth than ever before. It is estimated that more than 45 per cent. of the crops has been destroyed.

THE BUILDING OF THE CAMBRIDGE STREET BRIDGE SEEMS TO BE CHARGED WITH A LOT OF UNLOOKED FOR EXPENSE BECAUSE OF A FOUNDATION THAT THE BUILDERS SAY IS AS VAGRANT AS THE SLAVE LAW. A HARD STRUTUM IS STRUCK AT 12 FEET, AND AT 30 FEET A QUICKSAND IS ENCOUNTERED AND THE BOTTOM HAS NOT YET BEEN PROBED. Supt. Putnam says that it will be necessary to use 35 foot piles and that it will be necessary to use a goodly number of them.

Smooth Paving Work

The superintendent of streets allows that the smooth paving work on Merrimack street will be done on Thursday and that the Gorham street job will be done within 10 days. The streets that the committee on streets have voted to all include Riverside and Mead streets and Colonial avenue.

Committee on Sewers

The committee on sewers will meet at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon and will view the Oakland sewer bed, so called, and also the main sewer and the proposed arrangement for the pumping of the sewage over the hill to the Andover street sewer. The committee will meet at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

FRIEND BROTHERS OUTING

The third annual outing of the employees of Friend Brothers in Lowell, Lynn and Melrose, took place yesterday afternoon at Millington's grove, Wilmington, and was a success in every way.

DEATHS

LAPORTE—Henri Laporte, aged 47 years, 6 months and 17 days, died yesterday morning at his late home, 974 Moody street. Deceased leaves to mourn his loss, besides a wife, 13 children, Arthur, Louis, Thomas, Joseph, Leon, Angeline, Elsie, Marie, Eva, Agnes, Victoria and Philomena; also five brothers, Thomas and Joseph of Lowell, Octavien, Louis and David of Canada and two sisters, Mesdames Wilfrid Forget and G. Grenier of Canada.

TRAINOR—The funeral of the late Margaret Trainor, placed this morning from the home of her parents, 16 Kinsman street, at 9:30 o'clock and was largely attended by sorrowing relatives and friends. The cortege, after leaving the home of the sorrow stricken parents, wended its way to the Sacred Heart church in Moore street, where at 10 o'clock a high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Bernard Fletcher, O. M. I. The choir, under the direction of Mr. John J. Kelly, who also presided at the organ, sang the Gregorian mass. There was a profusion of floral tributes, prominent among them being the following: Broken circle, family; spray of roses, Mr. and Mrs. James Trainor; spray of roses, Mr. and Mrs. John Trainor; spray of asters, Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer; spray of 27 roses, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Trainor; "Our Cousin," Margaret Trainor and family; pillow, "Our Cousin," Mr. and Mrs. Rob. Lindsey; wreath, "Our Cousin," Haverhill; spray of roses, Mary Moran, Haverhill; spray of asters, "Chum," Christina and Molly Dillon; spray, Mrs. Cummings and family; spray of asters, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Dewire; spray of 27 roses, Bernice Sweet; spiritual bouquet, Miss Higgins.

The bearers were Thomas Trainor, Robert Lindsey, Frank Dwyer, John Kelley, Melvin King, and Walter Powers. Burial took place in St. Patrick's cemetery. The committal prayers at the grave were read by Rev. Bernard Fletcher, O. M. I.

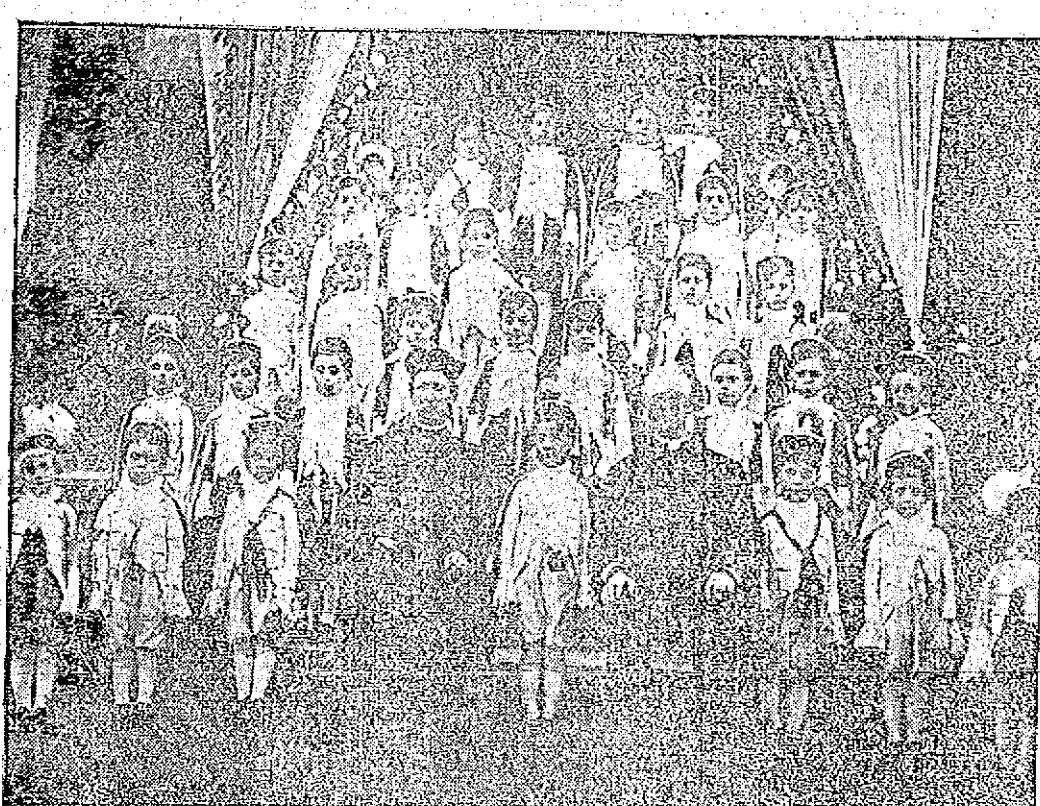

Undertaker John J. O'Connell had charge of the funeral.

GROUP OF ORPHANS ON STEPS OF FRENCH-AMERICAN ORPHANAGE WITH REV. W. A. WATELLE, O. M. I., AND MR. PROVOST, O. M. I., OF FALL RIVER IN CENTRE.

And Blessing of Grotto at the French American Orphanage

One of the largest and most successful celebrations organized by the French speaking people of this city was held yesterday, the event being the dedication of the grotto erected in honor of Our Lady of Lourdes on the grounds of the French American orphanage in Pawtucket street. The celebration started with a parade in which several thousand men and children were in line, and was followed by religious exercises at the altar in the grotto, the latter being witnessed by fully 30,000 people, while at night a torch light procession was held around the grounds.

Rev. Henri Watelle, O. M. I., conceived the idea of erecting a grotto to Our Lady of Lourdes, and he immediately asked the members of the religious and benevolent societies of the parish to cooperate with him in the movement. They gladly agreed to do so and a few months later the cement monument was under construction. A committee of which Xavier Delisle, president of the C. M. A. C., and Joseph H. Marchand of Union St. Joseph, were chairman and secretary respectively, was formed among the societies and a celebration on a large scale was at once planned. Several out-of-town invitations were sent, but owing to the Labor day celebrations in other cities, very few organizations outside of Lowell responded.

However, as was above stated, the ensemble was as successful as could be expected and the entire affair was run off as smoothly as could be desired. The committee in charge deserves congratulations for its good work.

Long before the time set for the parade the sidewalks along the route were crowded with people, and the scene was a pretty one, especially about St. Jean Baptiste church and the orphanage, where the decorations were splendid. The church and the rectory were a mass of flags and flowers, and large streamers hung from corner to corner of the buildings, while the orphanage with its streamers of white and yellow and its hundred little flags was also a very pretty sight.

At 1:30 o'clock the different divisions took their respective places along Pawtucket street, where Garde Frontenac was busily engaged in escorting the ous mottoes carried by the different unions.

The marshals of the different divisions were at their posts as early as 8 o'clock in the morning and as soon as the organizations marched to the starting point of the parade they were assigned to their positions. Promptly at 9:30 o'clock everything was in readiness for the start of the parade and after the division marshals reported the signal for the start was given.

Chief Marshal Charles E. Anderson mounted on a spirited black horse, attracted considerable attention and received much applause all along the line of march. He followed the platoon of police which was headed by Lieut. Martin Connors, and following the chief marshal were the following aides: John Bury, building laborers; Clas Davis, teamsters 72; Edward O'Brien, street railway men 551; William H. Lester, carpenters 49; Philip Roy, carpenters 1610; William H. Mulcahey, theatrical stage employees; Sandy Dunn, brewery teamsters; Joseph Kennedy, brewery bottlers; Stanislaw Wronski, cotton weavers; John W. Downing, international brotherhood of stationary firemen, local 14; James E. Anderson, brickers; Carl Heidreich, brewery workers; Thomas Mc-her. They furnished enough music to keep the paraders in step and one of the noticeable things about the bands was that they kept playing practically all the time from the start to the finish of the parade. The Independent Fire and Drum Corps, attired in khaki uniforms, attracted considerable attention all over the route of parade for they played national and popular airs and medleys.

Several of the unions furnished banners for the numbers who were unable to walk. Mayor Meahan, the city council committee on Labor day, and invited guests, also occupied carriages. At the conclusion of the parade the committee in charge of the prizes met and the $20 in gold for the best appearing union in line was awarded to the teamsters. The 2nd prize of $10 was awarded to the Leather Workers' union had the largest number in line, 232, and they were awarded the first prize of $10. The Carpenters' union was second and captured the second prize of $5. The coal teamsters and bartenders had $2 each, the building laborers 71.

With 2500 Men In Line Followed by Sports on So. Common

One of the finest Labor day demonstrations ever held in this city was that of yesterday. There was something going on all of the time. In the morning there was a grand parade and in the afternoon there were sports on the south common which were witnessed by thousands of people, while in the evening other thousands flocked to enjoy the open air meeting.

The feature of the day, however, was the parade in the morning and the number of men in line, the fine appearance of the members of the different unions, the manner in which the men went over the route and the well kept ranks reflect much credit upon the organizations that turned out, the committee in charge of the parade and organized labor itself.

The weather was ideal during the entire day, and thousands of people lined the sidewalks of the different streets through which the parade passed and enthusiasm ran high as the parade passed along the route. Of course nearly every person who witnessed the parade had particular friends in the different unions and naturally they applauded when those unions passed, but every now and then when a neatly attired organization passed there was an outburst of applause, cheers and handclapping.

There were about 2500 men in line and their neat appearance was generally applauded. There was but one thing in the parade, that of the West-Scotters' union, but there were numerous mottoes carried by the different unions.

LANGUISHING.

I WISHT rural mail delivery had never come along. I wisht the derned ole trolley cars wuz back where they belong! Say, don't you know us farmer men ain't got no chance a-tall To do a single thing but work from spring clear through the fall? An' when cold weather shuts us in, an' we are left alone, Do we call on all our neighbors? Yes —we use the telyphone! If Nancy knowed what's on my mhn, sho'd git het up an' frown, But dern it! you can understan'— I want to go to town!

I USE' to git there every week—I went to git the mail— But now it's jest the same as if they had me tied in jail. They wuz a groc'ry store them days where folks from miles away Would go to do the'r trading' an pass the time o' day. That groc'ry store wuz forced to quit —the postoffice wuz shut— An' all that's left of that the'r town is jest a muddy rut! I know! we git a dally now—the car'yer brings it down, But dern it! what's the difference! I want to go to town!

THE trolley cars run pas' my door —they almos' seem to fly, But I dast even take the time to watch as they roll by. I got to git an autobeel fer Nancy an' the girls— I'll steal the blame thing out o' night and take some joy whirlls! We got a fonygraf what plays the lates' op'ry airs, But that don't help a man like me for- get his toll and cares. I want a show where ladies dance— sometimes ther' is a clown; I'm goin' to see one, too, you bet— when I git to town!

The Groquet Girl

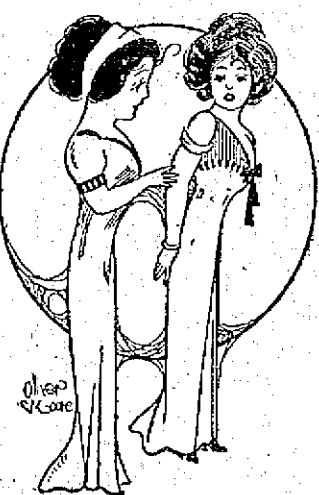

HERF'S to the maiden Who plays at croquet In the good old fashioned Regular way.

WHO likes well to argue With swift running palate, Who swats her opponent Right hard with her mallet!

HER INTEREST IN THE GAME.

"Fred, dear," said Mrs. Young, "what do they mean when they say a man tore off a hot one to left field?" "It's a scientific phrase," was the weary rejoinder. "You can't explain it precisely unless you have a centigrade thermometer to measure the temperature accurately and a set of surveying instruments to ascertain direction."

"Oh," she answered contentedly, "that makes it quite clear. But do you know, I thought it had something to do with baseball."

HIS VACATION.

"How did your husband spend his vacation?" "As chauffeur of an electric fan."

Wayside Wisdom.

There is a kind of virtue which drives other people to vice.

Punctuality is the politeness of kings—and the insolence of bill collectors.

There is hardly anything a man won't eat if you tell him it is good for his health.

Every married woman has it all figured out—what she is going to wear when her husband dies.

If a man's rich, people say he is stingy. If he's poor, they say he is shiftless. It's pretty hard, isn't it?

A woman can believe anything about a person she dislikes, and disbelieves anything about one whom she loves.

Good deeds are scarcer than bad ones, but one evil act will keep people talking longer than a hundred good ones.

The man who complains loudest about his employer's stinginess, is usually the one who makes his wife account for every cent he gives her to spend.

Who Is It?

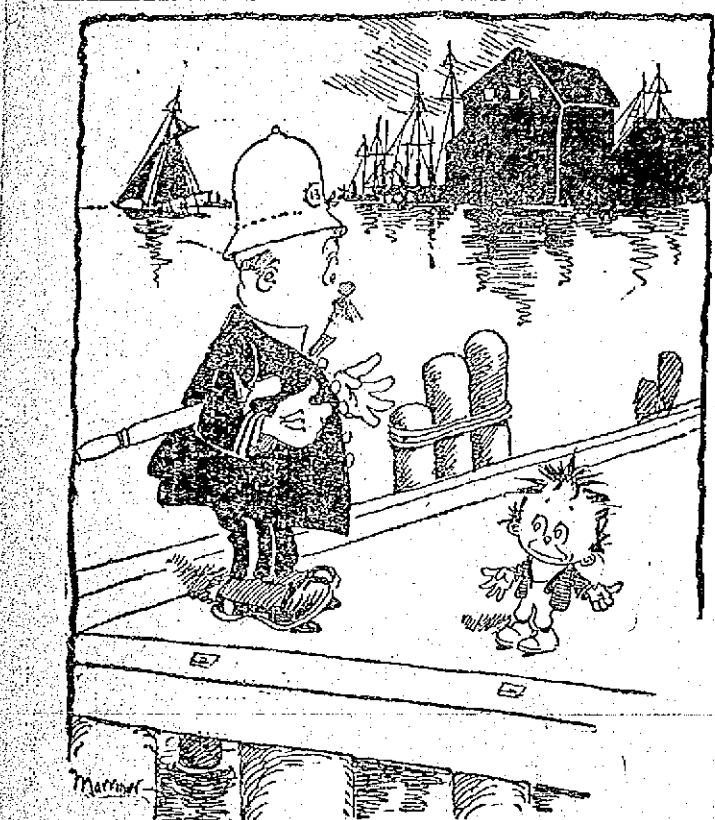

WILL he run again? "Is he talked out?" "Have he and Bryan become chummy?" "Has he made up with Taft?" "If elected would he return to his politics?" "What States could he carry?" "Is there a popular movement for his candidacy?" "Has he learned that silence is golden?" "What would he have done to Mexico?" "Will he stump the country next summer?" "Does he want war with Japan?" "Is it true that he has lost any of his nerve?" "Does his denial that he will be a candidate mean that he is planning to get there with both feet?" JOE KERR.

IN A CANOE.

Ruth (poetically)—Isn't this glorious? Couldn't you just drift thus forever, down life's long, shadowy stream? Jack (pragmatically)—Well, yes, I could drift down all right, but it'd be no joke paddling back!

A PUBLIC SERVANT.

Say, ossifer, you're sposed to look out for de public, ain't yer? Why, yes. Well, I'm one of de public an' me hat's blowed overboard. Jump in an' git it!

Didn't Worry Him.

HEY were waiting on the corner for the same street car, and after each had growled about its slowness in appearing one of them said:

"Well, it begins to feel sortish fallish, doesn't it?"

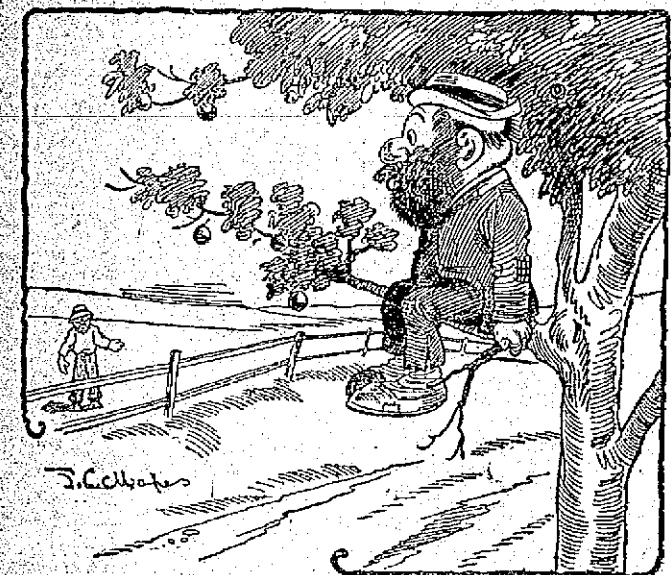

"Perhaps so," was the cautious reply.

"Shouldn't wonder if we had an early winter."

"H'm."

"The New Jersey weather prophet predicts it. He says it will come early and hang on late."

"Yes?" "And they are going to advance the price of coal." "H'm." "And clothing is going up." "So?" "And meats are sure to take another jump." "Quite likely." "But you don't seem to care." "No, my friend, I don't. I belong to four different poker clubs and can deal aces from the bottom of the pack, and why should I let the little things of life worry me?" JOE KERR.

THE LATEST.

What are you doing up there in my apple tree? Fell down here from an airship.

He Was Boxed Up.

I WAS sharing my seat in the smoker of a passenger car with a farmer when a man came through the train taking a straw vote. I had no objections to giving the name of my candidate, but when it came to the farmer his answer was: "No, nabur, I druther not." "But you are a voter," was urged. "Oh, yee."

"And you want to see a good man at the head of things?" "I reckon I do, but you can pass on."

When the man had passed I asked the farmer what his objections were, and he wriggled around and finally answered:

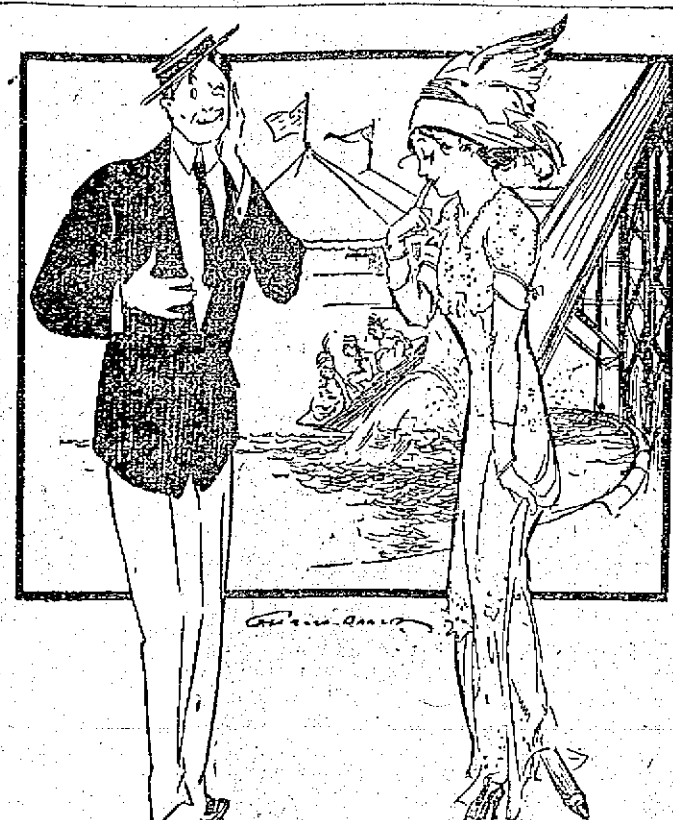

"Well, I'll tell ye. My wife is for Taft and my mother-in-law is for

AS IT REALLY HAPPENS.

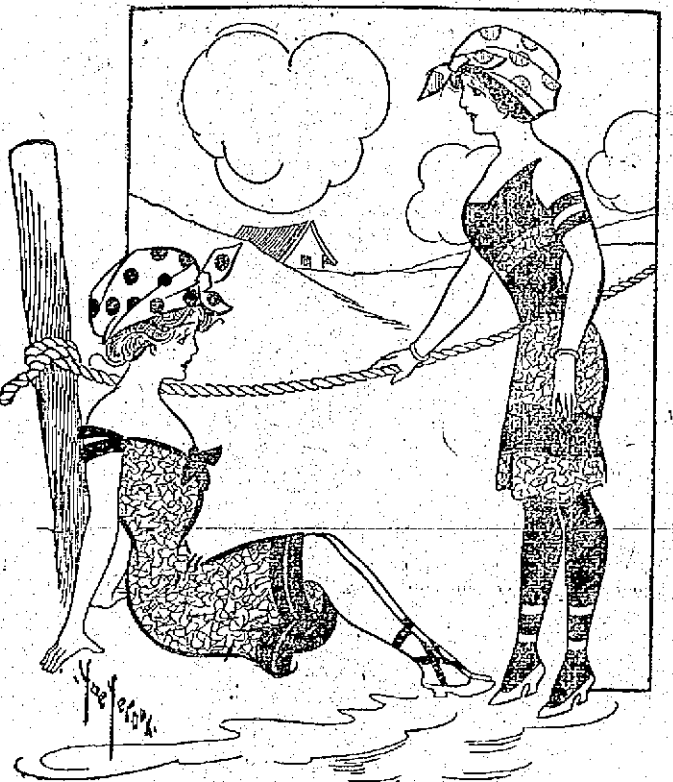

Back from your two weeks, I see. Yep. I presume you got engaged a number of times?

Naw, things don't go like that in real life, somehow. I got engaged the first week all right enough, but it took me all the second week to break it off.

WHAT DID THE YOUNG MAN DO?

Fred—Will you shoot the chutes with me? Maude—I don't know. I'm so timid that father always has to hold me in when we ride.

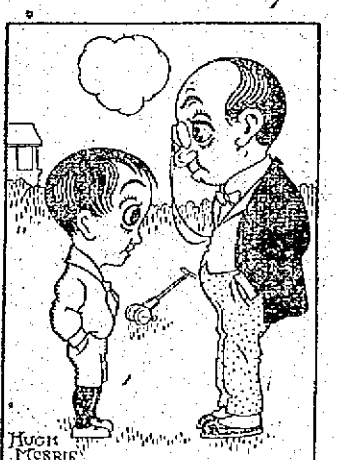

COULD BE AVOIDED.

I don't want to get my hair wet. Why don't you leave it in the bathhouse, then?

A SURE THING.

It was at this spot that I proposed to you, when we became engaged. Yes. I always bring 'em here. It'll most always make a man propose to bring 'em here. I've tried it on eight already.

FULLY EXCUSED.

Earlie, why didn't you cut the grass, as I told you to? I was going to, father, but the truant officers are around looking for boys under 14 who are working and I was afraid I'd get you into trouble.

Almost Satisfied.

YOU, sir," said the man on the street car as he folded up his paper and turned to the man on his right, "are you an American citizen?"

"Yes, sir."

"What of the trusts?"

"Dunno."

"What of cold storage?"

"Dunno."

"What of graft?"

"Dunno."

"What of strikes and lock-outs?"

"Dunno."

"Sir, what of the extravagant way this Government is run?"

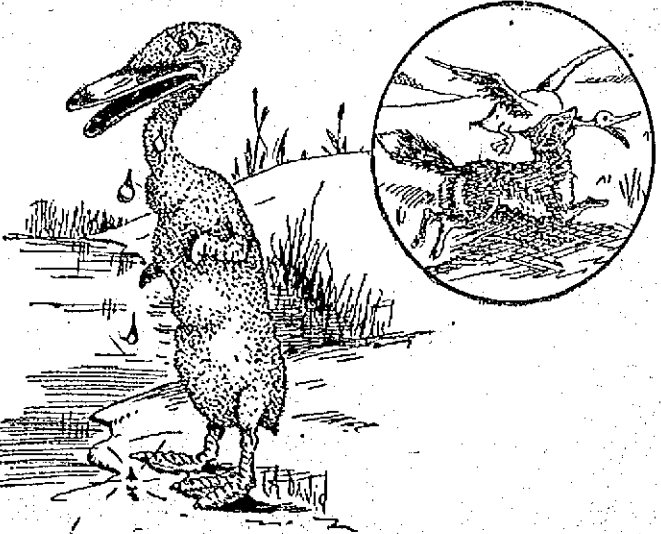

"Dunno."

"What of the deficit in the free delivery system?"

"Dunno."

"You don't know! Great Scott, man, what kind of a person are you not to take an interest in these things?"

"Say," was the reply, "I'm almost satisfied, but not quite. When I can take up two seals in a street car and stretch my legs across the aisle without the conductor calling me a hog I shan't care a copper. If the Senate of the United States steals the whole Panama Canal!" JOE KERR.

"Wonder Whose Little Duckie I Am Now?"

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

FIRST CONTINENTAL CONGRESS

SEPT. 5.—September 5, 1774, the first continental congress assembled with 41 of the 55 men selected to represent the 13 original states, in Carpenter's hall, Philadelphia. There were some arguments on the advisability of opening the meeting with prayer on account of the various creeds represented. The second morning's session was opened with prayer by Rev. Mr. Duché and with the reading of the thirty-fifth Psalm he carried the delegates off their feet with a wave of patriotism. Dr. Henry M. made a characteristic speech, saying: "Government is dissolved, debts and armies and the present state of things show that government is dissolved. Where are your landmarks, your boundaries? We are in a state of nature, Mr. I will submit, however, I am determined to submit if I am overruled. I hope that future ages will quote our proceedings with applause. It is one of the great duties of the democratic part of our constitution to keep itself pure. The distinction between Virginians, Pennsylvanians, New Yorkers and New Englanders is no more. I am not a Virginian, but an American!"

A dirty mouth is injurious to yourself and most disgusting to others while a well kept set of teeth gives you an appearance of refinement. It is hard to understand why persons who are otherwise scrupulously clean about their person allow their mouths to remain in a shocking state of filth, yet such is the case.

RIGGS' DISEASE

Interesting Remarks by Dr. A. J. Gagnon of This City

It is a strange fact that, while the shrinkage of the gums (Riggs' disease) causes the loss of more teeth than any affection except decay, very little attention is paid to it either by the patient or by the dentist. Many dentists, who are scrupulously careful to fill every cavity and supply every missing tooth, give little or no attention to the condition of the gums.

As little or no pain accompanies the disease in its first stages no complaint is then made by the patient, when it is easier of remedy. It is at this time that the dentist, having recognized it, should treat it and instruct the patient in the care of the gums.

The shrinkage of the gums is generally caused by tartar which is deposited from the saliva around the necks of the teeth. The tartar acts as an irritant setting up an inflammation in the gum margins. The gums become red and thickened and bleed easily. Under the continued irritation the gums begin to shrink from the teeth leaving them bare where more tartar can deposit and keep up the irritation and resulting inflammation driving the gums still farther away from the necks of the teeth.

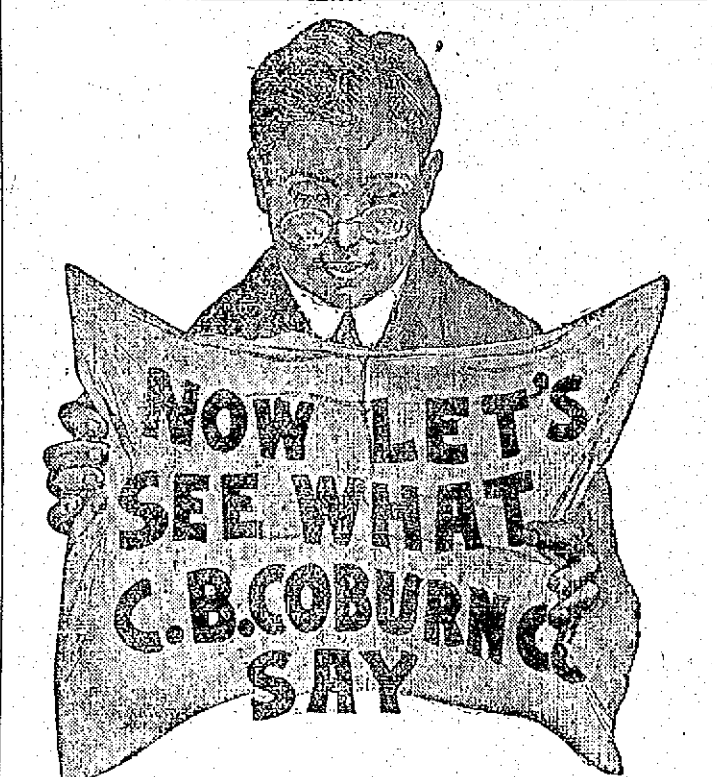

The disease once started around one tooth will quickly spread to others and soon the whole mouth is involved. In many cases whole sets of teeth otherwise good are lost.

In its advanced stages this disease is high incurable and only by the most vigilant attention can it be checked. The mouth becomes in a filthy and unsightly condition, the gums bleed easily and pus discharges from the margins which (disgusting as it may seem) is swallowed with the food. The breath becomes very offensive, the teeth become loose and sore and eventually fall out if not extracted. Cleanliness is the great preventive of this disease. If the mouth is kept clean there is little to be feared. In spite of your efforts towards cleanliness tartar or other deposits, which you cannot remove, appear on the teeth or if your gums are inflamed you should visit your dentist at once when it is his duty not only to put your mouth in order but also to instruct you in the care of your particular case.

The following soothing antiseptic mouth wash will be found effective in dissolving recently deposited tartar, reducing the inflammation in the gums and hardening them and in destroying pus as well as acting as a general antiseptic.
